A word about the author: Elsa Kazi

By: Ali Ahmed K Brohi

Mrs. Allama Kazi who called by all as M other Elsa Kazi, was a remarkable woman indeed. She was German by birth, but a Sindhi by spirit and God had bestowed upon her the grace of being one of the greatest poets of her time. She was not only a poet of very high caliber, but painter of great distinction, besides she was a writer of repute - she wrote one-act plays, short stories, plays, novels and history. She was a composer and a musician of considerable attainments. Indeed, there was hardly any conspicuous branch of Fine Arts that she did not practice to perfection. Although she did not know Sindhi language directly but still she managed to produce translation in English verse of the selected verses of Shah Abdul Latif after the pith and substance of the meaning of those verses were explained to her by Allama Kazi. She has successfully couched the substance of those verses in a remarkable poetical setting which, in musical terms, reflects the echo of the original Sindhi metrical structure and expression in which Latif had cast them. Her's remains the best translation so far in English of Shah Abdul Latif's Elsa Kazi (Elsa Gertrude Loesch) was born in 'Rudel Stadt' a small village in Germany on 3rd October, 1884, in the house of a great musician, who ultimately migrated to Dulwich London. She was a daughter of prosperous German Elderman. He had property in London which was destroyed in World War-II. After war, compensation was paid to her in respect of such property. Her paintings are often seen in many distinguished family homes. She also painted the famous courtesan queen of Khairpur Mirs, “Bali”.

It was in London that she met Allama I.I. Kazi, just by sheer chance. It so happened, that once Allama Kazi, having arrived at a railway station, just in time, while the train had already started moving. He was however able to board in, in the last compartment which was empty, excepting a solitary young lady occupying a corner quarter. Reared in a traditional family background of saints & sages, Mr. Kazi felt very much embarrassed and kept standing near the door with his back to the lady. Elsa was amazed, astonished and amused to meet a man, who would not take seat, despite repeated offers and would only repeat apologies. For a man who was so innocent chaste and interesting, she sought his address and thus developed a life long association. The couple was married in Germany in 1910 A.D.

The fate had so ordained that a Sindhi scholar should get joined in wedlock with a German poetess, to make a versatile couple of scholarly eminence. The couple lived in London from 1911 to 1919, and occasionally came on short visit to Sindh. Altogether, the couple spent 30 years of life in England, during which they remained engaged in research, tracing the evolution of religion through the ages up to the advent of Islam. Both of them contributed numerous essays, articles and addresses in various vital branches of modern knowledge, beside preaching Islam under the aegis of Jamiatul Muslimeen. In the year 1919, the couple returned to Sindh, and Kazi Sahib first entered Government Judiciary Service on deputation. After two years stay, because of some difference with His Highness Mir Ali Nawaz of Khairpur, he resigned and the couple left for London.

The couple continued propagation of Islam in London till April 1951, when Allama was offered the post of Vice-Chancellorships of University of Sindh. After 8 years,
A llama Sahib, resigned from the post of Vice-Chancellor, and the couple lived in a retired life at Hyderabad Sindh. In the year 1967, Mother Elsa Kazi was suddenly and seriously taken ill, with Ureoma, and breathed her last, at the ripe age of 83. She now lies buried along with her life-long companion Allama Kazi, at New Campus of Sindh University. Free translation of Mother Elsa Kazi's chronogram is as follows:

"Alas our reverend Elas;
Left this world to live in that one;
She was steadfast on the right path;
She was expert in every fine art,
Accomplished in every blessed discipline;
In modesty had no parallel,
In delicacy no equal;
She was A llama's close confident,
Well informed of Divine Secrets:
She was kind and tender,
To all high and low;
Elsa Kazi unsurpassed in gentleness Got a permanent abode in paradise".
Introduction

By: Mehtab Mehboob

Madam Elsa Kazi Gertrude Loesch (1884-1967) is remembered today, as she was called in her life time, with the epithet “M other Elsa”. Her story-telling, as such, should not surprise anyone; but her knack of it, and the impact thus produced, amuses everyone. There have been many story-writers but M other Elsa is unique, not only in her style, but in her choice of characters and their inner-most thoughts, readily accepted by the reader as his own.

We may well begin with her Flower Fairy Stories, in series, Freedom, and The M an in the M oon, among them, presents a masterpiece of the twentieth century creative literature. The Philosopher, another series, coincides with the quarterly journal of the Philosophical Society of England, of which her husband, the late Allama I.I. Kazi, was member and a contributor. The characters in this series smack of Shakespearean spirit, donning modern costumes to speak the truth of the present day: The M echanical Life, and Passion, Sacrifice: then taking to a metaphysical look into: Free W ill, Resurrection and Purgatory, a place where souls, departing this life, will be lodged in a temporary suffering or expiration of venial.

The One Creator, the all greats;
Lord of the universe
The living, the original;
Ruler with power innate;
The giver, the sustainer,
the unique, compassionate;
This master praise, to Him alone thyself in praise prostrate..
The generous, who does create the universe in pairs..

None shares His glory, "He was..is, shall be"..who this doth say Accepts Mohammad as 'guide' with heart and love's true sway; None from amongst those lost their way or ever went astray.

“He is without a partner”, when this glorious news you break
With love and knowledge, Mohammad accept ..as cause him take Why would you then obeisance make to others after that?

From One, many to being came;
'many' but Oneness is;
Don't get confounded, Reality is 'One', this truth don't miss Commotions vast display - all this I vow, of Loved-one is.

The Echo and the call are same, if you sound's secret knew They both were one, but two became only when 'hearing' came.
A thousand doors and windows too,
the palace has ..but see, Wherever I might go or be master confronts me there

7
If you have learnt to long, by pain be not distressed-Secret of love's sorrow must be never confessed-Suffering is by the heart caressed, and there it is preserved.

The poison-drinking lovers, lured by poison sweet, drink more and more;
To bitterness of fatal cup,
the poison-drinkers are inured, Though wounds are festering, and uncured, no whispers to the vulgar goes.
All from Beloved's side is sweet whatever He gives to you.
There is no bitter, if you knew the secret how to taste.

There is a call to gallows, friends, will any of you go!
Those who do talk of love may Know to gallows they must speed.

If you a draught desire to tavern find your way;
Thy head do sever, and that head beside the barrel lay;
Only when you this price do pay then few cups you may quaff.

The genuine lover, for his head care and concern has none;
He cuts it off—joins it with breath as gift then hands it on;
Carves down to shoulders, form loved-one then begs for love's return.

To guard and to preserve the head, the lover's business is not this---
One of beloved's glance is worth so many hundreds head of his--- Flesh, skin and bone, and all there is, the 'least' of loved-one, equals not.
Kalyan Yaman-II (Path to peace)

Thou art the friend; the healer thou;
For every pain the remedy-- Cure for my heart, thy voice alone the only cure it is for me......
The reason why I call for thee is none can cure my heart but thou.

Thou art the friend, the Healer thou for every ailment balm dost send;
Merciful God--all drugs are vain;
the pains by drugs will never end;
Unless ordered by thee O friend, no drug will ever sickness cure.
Thou art the friend, the Healer thou;
for sufferings thou the remedy;
Thou divest; curtest disease, dost guide, master thou art eternally-- Yet, I am wonderstruck to see that you physicians still provide.

Strike friend-- thy hand raise, favour me-- hold not your hand, and should I die
By such death I shall honored be which through this wound is caused.

Chapter-II

Today still groans the thatches fill,
where wounded lie and suffer;
Although it is their twilight, still same ointment there and dressing 6

Poor wounded ones, so restless grow, yet grateful are for pain;
For ever forward wish to go and here would not remain.

Mother, I cannot trust in those whose eyes with tears do over-flow-W ho bring the water to their eyes, their sorrow to the world to show;
W ho love Beloved, hide their woe, no tears they show, nor speak about-

8

Physician, blundering and unwise, you cauterise my skin, and treat W ith slops my heart-ache, know to whom scaffold a bridal-bed supplies, T he one beatific vision lies in death, which is the union sweet.

Physicians you consulted but dieting you ignored...
Had you obeyed, perhaps restored to health you would be now.

Physicians were my neighbours
I ne'er asked their advice-Therefore I find that in mine eyes cataracts I now have formed.

Chapter-III

A h! suddenly they found themselves in sphere of love...and there They cut their heads, left trunks apart such garland they did wear!
Beauteous they were...to loved ones fair
I saw them give their heads away!

Go to the moth, the surest way of immolation ask-
The moths, who throw themselves into the fire every day;
Whose tender hearts became a prey to cupid's arrow sharp.

The moths assembled, gathering above a raging fire...
Heat drove them not, no fear they had,
flames did their hearts inspire - Their necks they lost, and on the pyre of truth they burnt themselves.

If you call yourself a moth,
from blaze return not terrified;
Enter by the loved-one's light and be ever glorified
You are still unbaked...beside not yet with kiln acquainted are.

If you call yourself a moth,
then come, put out the fires sway, Passion has so many baked but you roast passion's 'Self' today-Passion's flame with knowledge slay... of this to base folk give no hint.

Happy those who acquaintance make with goodly grinding wheel Their rapiers never then shall take to rust, nor will corrode.

Apprentice of the blacksmith, works
the bellows not with care;
Not close to fire goes, he fears love sparks that issue there.
And yet proclaims he every where;
"full-fledged blacksmith am I"!
18
Turn your head into an anvil, then for smithy do enquire,
There the hammer-strokes of fire may turn you into steel.-

When I an arrow do receive on that spot I remain; Perhaps my Hero-love again will strike in mercy sweet.

Physician give no medicine.
may health I never see...
M ay be, enquiring after me my love to me will come.

Sacrifice your head, and 'suffer'
if loved-ones send dismay...
Say not, 'Forsaken' 't is their way like this to form their links

Those that cut me up, became the kindly surgeon too-
The wound they quickly dressed, and cured within a day the same Oh heart! and now make this your aim
"stay with them, and be safe from wounds"

As long there is no need, so long physician is not here...
But when one day pain does appear it is as though the leech had come!

Chapter-IV

They read and read, but what they read their hearts refuse to store-
The more they pages turn, the more are deeply steeped in sin.
O friend, why are you still inclined to waste paper and ink-Go rather forth and try to find the source where words were formed.

26
The world with 'I' doth overflow and with it flaunts about-But its own 'Self' it doth not know...
't is a magician's spell.

They do not heed the glorious line that does begin with 'A '-'
In vain they look for the Divine, though page on page they turn.

You only read the letter 'A '-'
all other pages put aside-Book-reading nothing will convey-but your being purify.
29 U nuttered is unknown...the uttered is never understood....behold,
A lthough it be as true as gold, humanity takes never note.-

Chapter-V

30
By 'giving' they were hurt,-'not giving'
to them contentment brought-
So they became sufis, as nougat they did take with themselves.

To hear vile words, and not return,
but hear them silently;
This is the pearl, most precious pearl, we in guide's teaching see-But decked with jewels he will be who with 'Silence' the Ego kills.
32
Those who never forgot the sorrow, and lesson learnt of woe-
The slate of thought within both hands;
'silence' they study so-
They only read page which does show
Beloved's lovely face.

Patience, humanity adopt,
For anger is disease-Forbearance bringeth joy and 'peace', if you would understand.

The inoffensive don't offend forget who do offend-
In this refined and cultured way thy day and night do spend Thus meditating, humbly walk, until thy life doth end-
A Lawyer keep within, O friend, to blush not, facing judge.
35
A s long as of this daily world no glimpses you obtain-A perfect view you will not gain of your love Heavenly.

True lovers never will forget their love Divine, until one day Their final breath will pass away as tearful sigh.

Chapter-I

A moonlit night, an open plain,
and so for yet to go;
My camel look not back, for you
't is shame to waver so;
Be steady, resolute, and show my loved-ones you can reach

O full moon! though you rise adorned, your beauty to enhance;
You are not a blink worth of my love
With all charms you advance, Since your whole being but one glance of the Beloved is.

A hundred suns may rise, and blaze four score-four moons may shine;
I vow, without Beloved mine
I am in darkest night

Translated In Verse By Elsa Kazi
4
O moon, by magic fade away;
may you be shorn of light-O r hide yourself so that I might the soul's Beloved meet.

In darkest midnight, the Beloved shows himself so clear;
the moon and Pleiades disappear yea, like an echo mere.

Chapter-II

O moon, cast first thy silver-ray on the Beloved when you rise;
And for thy Maker's sake, O moon message of helpless one convey;
"My hopeful longing eyes, thy way with tears are watching everyday."
7

O moon, the moment that you rise
First glance at the Beloved cast
Say to the dear one: I am sick
In you my only comfort lies
"My hopeful and relying eyes
Are ever set expecting you"

8

O moon, when you ascend the skies
First glance at the Beloved cast
My message to the friend convey Correctly all, and all precise
"My hopeful and relying eyes
Are ever set expecting thee"

Rise moon, see the Beloved-thou Art near and far am I Presence of Him in scented dews
I feel, that in night doth lie-
On foot I cannot reach and Father gives camel can't supply
On which riding, ere dawn draws nigh
I easily could reach.
I shall die longing, love is kind but O h...so far is H e Father gives camel not to me-
I am too weak to walk.

To the Beloved, when you rise
O moon, thy very first glance send;
And all the message I give O moon, convey in truthful wise;
"M y hopeful and relying eyes

Thy glance let the Beloved meet,
O moon, and my requests submit Befittingly; above courtyard of the Beloved bow and greet; Speak gently...on Beloved's feet both of thy light-hands softly lay.
O moon, all my entreaties safe into thy shining garment tie, L o w' ring your head, to loved one tell in what a wretched state am I;
R emember; to the place you hie
T hat is whole universe's H ope.

C hapter-III

O camel! spurn thy slothful mood-
N o longer now delay!
B ut once unite me with my love
no more the truant play,
B ut speed, ere night doth pass away to meet my love after.

I must go where my love resides;
to the Beloved speed!
There I shall give thee sandal-wood and thou shall no more feed On salt-bush coarse, unfit for thee or any worthless weed;
O hasten! there is urgent need to reach while night doth last.

A rise and take a forward step-be not an idler base;
The highway to my love is straight and hath no winding ways...
Self-pity drop...a gallop raise to bring us swift and soon.
Remember your ancestry, and your forebear's noble breed;
Your stock is well-known near and far and you do hold indeed; Rare pedigree—and so we plead show us some kindness now.

I bound him near some glorious tree that he some buds might eat; Ill-mannered camel, on the sly still finds the salt-bush sweet.
Woe's me—I know not how to treat
Camel that so confounds.

I tried to saddle him, but e'en unsaddled he'd not rise—
The way the herd is gone, he lies and only gapes that side.
My camel, I will give thee reins of gold, and trappings fine; Not only buds of sandal wood but thou on myrrh shalt dine; If to the one Beloved mine thou wilt bring me this night.

The camel did forget the herd, nor e'en will salt-bush eat... His blown-up hump has now become his pampered passion's seat- Alas, this callous, new conceit he'll not drop unto death.

He goes not with the herd of late and no more will he graze; Since Cupid's arrow wounded him he hugs a curious craze; To his new love, with love-sick gaze he crawls, defying death.

Now sits with herd, musk-branches eats;
yet calm remains his face Ah me, apparently my camel shows no outward trace.
'Here' he is with the world, but graze with heart doth fondly 'there'.

24

He's not what he was yesterday returning to the yard;
He never at the manager looks-all food doth disregard; Seems, poison creepers on the sward
he ate when with the herd.

With zest thee camel browses now on creepers such as made him yearn;
But owners, keepers of the field, with shouts his sweet indulgence spurn
The poor intruder, powerless
he grows from voices harsh and stern;
No answer finds he in return and all his arduous madness flies.

Good animal, what you did put your teeth in, finding them so sweet;
These baneful creepers if you eat will bring you yet to grief and woe.

Chapter-IV

Torrents of rain and wind-camel
there obstinate he lies-How shall I saddle him when rise unsaddled he will not.

A solid braided rope construct,
with this your camel blind,
The fragrant creepers everywhere
all over grounds you'll find, Once tasted, he will leave behind all else, if he's not tied.
I fettered him with rope and chain,
but shackles were in vain;
He broke them all, and dragged them on where creepers decked the plain-O God, put sense and understanding in this camel's brain With mercy free him from this pain to rise above this curse.

O rise, and to thy haven far thy earthbound glances bear,
May be a happy welcome there awaits thee from thy love.

No-go and shackle him, he will run wild if left alone;
By tempting him to cat, he'll play more pranks, but won't alone; Load him and let him graze and groan with heavy fetters bound.
32
Who laid a spell on you? and who waylaid you, wished you ill?
Blinkers you wear—your soles rubbed off-your kind not meet you will;
And round and round, as in a mill
you circumambulate.

33
My comely camel, won't you eat the sandal wood and drink your fill Of cleanest purest water, food the finest you refuse it still—What law gave you the tasty thrill of salt-bush mere, above all else?

At last my camel every day is browsing in that garden, where Two tree-shoots are worth millions there handful of leaves are thousands worth.
35

Two tree-shoots are worth millions...nay one leaf alone five lakhs will be-Now to enrich his soul he eats, the wholesome blossoms of this tree-Here e'en a withered leaf we see is many, many hundreds worth.

My lakhs-worth camel, that I bought for hundreds, beautiful became For any eye to see; don't blame and say too dearly he was bought.

37

My invaluable camel, friend, no praise is now for him too high;
H is manager fill with cardamoms then saddle him, and he will fly,
All distance he will defy,
and here and now the Loved-one reach.
Chapter I

The minstrel came to Junagarh and here took out his lyre;
With his entrancing melodies
he did all hearts inspire;
With his bewitching magic-strings
he set whole town on fire-But palace-servants, princesses, were struck with anguish dire;
"That Raja's head was bard's desire, lute spoke in accents clear."

The bard at thought a living string played with humility;
The Raja in his palace fine,
to hear him did agree;
He mercifully called him in,
and met him graciously-Then prince and bard, one harmony, one single 'self' became!
3

"I travelled many foreign lands,
and have arrived today;
Poor minstrel I, no treasures crave
but for your life I pray-
To win this favour, let me play,
O h Sir, the time is short.-"

4

"Leaving all other doors, O king
I wandered to your door!
Blest Sorth's husband, see my need a beggar doth implore, H is empty apron fill once more and happiness restore!"
5
The king sat on his glistening dais, the bard below him played;
The faintest note of music sweet up to the Raja sped-To private folks that could not come the minstrel too was led;
Fine horses were produced, rare gems,
before the bard were spread,
Who said: "no wealth like this, but head of Raja do I claim!"

No jewels can the minstrel please no wealth, no property-
From riches and from great rewards H is only wish is, near to be the giver of this wealth.

Prince said: "I'll gladly sacrifice
My head for thee O Bard,
Although this is a small reward
For all thy music's worth...
8

“Were I to own a hundred heads
And weigh them with thy strings-Behold the scale, how down it swings
On side of strings divine!

“O Friend, my head is only bone:
An empty, empty bone-
If thousand heads my neck would own I'll cut them all for thee!”

The strings, the dagger and the neck were reconciled all thee-King said: “nought is so lovely than your wish to come to me,
My head you craved...most heartily I do thank God for that...”
11

“But singer, it astounded me,
That while you played your strain.
How could its sweetness you survive
And could alive remain?
Last night, my being all in twain was by your music cut.”

Chapter-II

The flower of Girnar plucked;
The town is plunged in mourn and pain,
Hundreds like Sorath stand and raise Their lamentations all in vain-
The minstrel, holding lock, receives
The prince's head adorned again-While virgins chant the sad refrain;
"Last night the Raja passed away."

Sorath is dead; and all is peace-
Ruler removed his tents-
There are no singings and no shows, no tuneful elements.-
And after this, artist presents
The head again to king!

14

Sorath is dead, and all is peace-
Raja pitches his tents;
Music is heard again...the show goes on with merriments-Echo sounds song's sweet sentiments...
Behold, the happy king!

Chapter-I

1

In Infinitude I toss,

O guide no bound perceive mine eyes

T tortuous beauty of the Loved,

H as no limit, has no size-

H ere intensive longing lies,

T here the Loved-ones do not care!

C ursed be duality, B elooved,

F rom 'Self' do shelter me-

O , hold the 'I' near thee,

B ut thou canst reach 'thyself', O master.

B ut thou canst reach 'thyself' master;

N othing but B eauty is;

O doubter, couldst thou doubt dismiss,

T here's no I dea then left.
Beloved, hold the 'I' near thee;
All self concern I've cast from me;
Protector mine, with duality
I wasted far too many days!

That is real dualism, when Non-dualist yourself you call;
Be shorn of separateness, and
'Ego' let not thy soul enthral;
For 'this', doth not exist at all;
And 'that' not known is without 'this'.

6
'That' is not known without 'this', and
From 'this', 'that' doth not separate stand;
"Human my secret is, and I Am his, that thou must understand"-
This voice did sound from end to end,
By seers, and the knowing ones.
No one who loaded is with 'Self';
The other side will see,
For God is one, and Oneness loves;
So spurn duality;
And all thy anxious tears “to be”,
Shed at altar of unity.

The servant too has no beginning,
And no end shall see-
Who the Beloved found, shall be Absorbed for ever there.

Everyone knows where he is
I know not where I stand;
Guides and books there many are,
And they are close at hand-
But I, do seek the distant land
W here 'yes' and 'no'are not.
10

'Yes' and 'no', still within reach
Of earthly idea are;
But beyond all vision far
Is the Beauty that I seek.

11

Sometime or other, beauteous forms
Will be overwhelming thee;
But falcon of Reality,
Let not heedlessly escape.

The sensuous beauty thrashed me so
As carders cotton beat;
And now my hands are obsolete,
My body's paralyzed.

Confound thy senses, and renounce Thy 'Self'...H im-knowing be;
To recognize the Loved-one, drop Thy personality;
And then coarse multiplicity
With unity destroy-
Chapter-II

The Loved-one bound me-Threw me into waters deep;
And said: “Now dry do keep,
And getting wet avoid.”

One that is into water thrown
From getting wet, how could be free?
Enlightened one, this mystery
How I might solve it, say-

“Rely on contemplation, but
Of law neither neglectful be...
Your heart get used to Reality
Which is your Destiny to see;
Be resolute, and verily You'll be immune from getting wet.”
17

Ah, Reality broke my Existence, so that I;
Can no more breathe without it,
In its presence high;
My soul suffused doth lie,
Exclusive of all else.

Be silent- do not move your lips;
Your eyes do close, your hearing stay...
Drink not your fill, and at your meals
When still half hungry, turn away-
And then a glimpse enjoy you may
Of image that your mind's depth holds.-

Would of the august secret
I divulge one whit-Trees would burn up,-unfit For growth all earth would be.
Chapter-III

Let your eyes an offering be
For Loved-one ere you break your fast;
Sumptuous dishes seventy You'll get by seeing Loved-ones face.

If my eyes at rise for other Sight than the Beloved care-
From their sockets I will tear
My eyes as morsels for the crows.

Facial phenomena lists
Do not try to see with those,
Longing gaping with those eyes
Never Loved-ones features shows-
Only when both eyes you close
The Beloved you will see.
23
Dwell in mine eyes Beloved fair
That I can close them now;
No one may ever see you there
And I nought else shall see.

Acquire eyes that able are to visualize Beloved's face;
Not then at any other gaze
Loved-ones are very sensitive.

About dead Elephant amongst the blind arose parley-
They handled it all over, but Blind eyes could nought convey-Decisive word can say-
The 'seers' only can display
The genuine truth of things.
26
The sense of wonder doth not dwell
Within the vulgar mind-Secret of Love to trace and find
Is no task for the blind.

27
For whom so anxiously we pine,
We ourselves are those;
O doubt, be gone with all your woes
For Loved-ones we have found.

28
Eyes weep and yet rejoice each day to look and to adore-
The more they see loved-ones, the more drunk they with love do get.

The more I prohibited eyes to look, the more they longed;
They crossed the sleeping world, to find loved-one at any price-They killed me ah...but in this wise peace for themselves secured.
30 Relationship with the 'visible',
In no case do desire-Why not you for the real enquire and set out, seeking that?

31 Hear, and take note, that you yourself are 'barrier', and what is Between the union and its bliss
Is nothing but yourself.

The love wants that love's secret alone his own shall be;
But eyes that flow continuously and sinking heart;...betray.

Chapter-IV

33 Corrupt ones can corrupt, whose love
Is very weak, indeed
But whom love has consumed, succeed they can't for he the vile one slew.
34
When praying, think not of yourself,
Or prayers are in vain;
All thinking of yourself restrain Drop self, and then do pray.-

35
You profess to be a 'faithful'
Holy maxims you recite...
But your heart deceit is hiding
Duality-satanic spite-Faithful outward, you delight in idolat 'rise inside.

Seek not the form of one that your 'Beloved' you do call,
As conversation not at all can happen face to face.

Converse you hold when cross you are
Can never loved-one reach
Some mischief monger longs to mar your heart, and spoil your love.
38

For to be cross is not the way;
two stones, can they unite?
'tis love that doth the cosmos sway through love alone it lives.

Each claims to be on right path here;
But I have lost myself-D esiring and acquiring are So very, very near-
I set my mind on distant sphere where 'yes' and 'no' are not.

D emerits world decries, loved-one at so-called merits cross would be M y deeds, I mentioned with my tongue now all undone in dust I see.

Then I discounted all my deeds, which once I thought were charity,
A n embassage I sent of shame;
R egrets and deep humanity,
But oh...my love made up with me only when 'I' had disappeared.
41

W hose body is a rosary,
the mind a bead, a harp the heart.
Love-strings are playing there the theme of unity in every part;
The nerves do chant: "T here's none like thee;
the 'O ne' and only one thou art.- E'en sleeping beauty they impart, their very sleep their worship is!
Pirbhati-VI

(Song of Dawn)

These are not ways you knew before thy fiddle hanging on the peg,
And lovely dawn, as if it were your enemy, so to ignore;
'Musician' call yourself no more if to adore you thus forget,-

How fast you sleep! in pillows put your face and weep with sorrow;
May be your violin lies tomorrow forsaken on the ground.

The true musician has no peace;
nowhere for long he tarries-On shoulder-strap his violin carries and asks the way to wastes.

Confounded do you roam...O say where were you yesterday?
My minstrel, now no longer loll, but leave your listless way-
Go to the king's door, beg and pray for things of genuine worth!

The king is giving secretly gifts to ungifted ones;
If this those artists were to hear they never would agree,
Their fiddles instantaneously to smithereens would reduce!

So many minstrels, of what use is all the craft they ply?
What servant deems so precious, may be sin in master's eyes-
Alchemy thou, and brazen I thy look turns me to gold!

Bestowal is not due to caste, whoever works, obtains,
At childish ways of innocence forbearance king maintains;
Who one night at his court remains shall e'er be free from pains!

It is the Givers great reproach, against musicians vain;
"Why do you beg at other doors and mine do not approach Hence harm and hardship do encroach upon their happiness.

The only Giver thou, and we the humble beggars are;
Rains seasons have...Thy bounty's rain doth pour eternally;
A visitation sweet, from thee exalts, though soiled I be!
10

The morning star has risen...Oh arise, adore thy master,
He swiftly turns away; doth know minds of musicians all!
Ramkali-VII

(Yogis)

Chapter-I

1. The glorious yogis in this world, some 'Fire' bring, some 'Light' Who kindle themselves to 'ignite', "I cannot live without them"!

2. I on a festal bed did sleep, then from a sigh woke I, Those who aroused me with a sigh "I cannot live without them"-

3. The music of renouncing ones great 'wealth' for me is this They have no need of words; nor speech their way and fashion is A h, those that have 'become', I wis, "I cannot live without them"
O nothing with themselves they take, with 'Self' they parted company-
And those in whom such traits I see,
"I cannot live without them"!

Chapter-II

With hunger yogis pack their bags preparing for a revelry...
By tempting foods, they are not moved,
and out they pour so lustily
The 'thirst' to drink; their minds they flog until like beaten flax they be...
So through long wastes they wade, to see at last fertility and life!

Food has no charm for yogis, since it left them with a bitter taste;
From human beings they beg not;
their call for help is in the waste;
They choose poverty, and embraced sorrow with reverence sincere!
7
No bowls they carry, nor to ask from houses they do care;
God-loving, oh so far away from human-doors they fare
No law they need, within they bear a court of justice pure!

8
They sleep at sunset, and again at midnight rise, God-lovers these-
Their faces only wash with dust...
When dawn approaches then one sees them lie by road-side ill at ease;
that they are 'Yogis', ne'er they tell.

These God-lovers, they do unfold humility within their eyes-
They have no fathers, mothers, castes, no pedigrees, no ties untold;
God is their One relationship that they within their pure souls hold;
Of all the treasures manifold a lion-cloth all their savings is.
10
And when their lion-cloth they have bound ablutions more they do not need...
They too had heard the holy call,
Before Islam that did sound
All ties they severed, and they found at last the guide they wished to meet.

The selfless ones you know by this,
that no desire they do bear;
Their sign the non-dependence is,
and freedom from relationship.

Whose heads bent on their knees must be, their beings integrated are;
Their hearts like compass do return to the Divine perpetually- divested are by 'Reality';
From sin's account-giving all free, are those whose state 'Direction' is!
Chapter-III

This night they will with you remain, tomorrow they will wend their way;
A longing for the patient ones in every of your veins retain;
For, only fate will bring again this kind of yogis to your door.

They will abide with you today, tomorrow they will disappear-On yogis feast, and so enrich your soul, before they go away...
Oh seek their feet, or else you may pine vainly after they are gone.

Before they leave your homely door, with them a heart-to-heart talk have;
And sacrifice yourself on them ten times during the day, or more-
As soon they leave for H'ingalore, then only fate can bring them back!

Translated In Verse By Elsa Kazi

16
God-seeker's voice today I miss,
the courtyard now is desolate;
The sight of empty places here,
Kills me, so tortuous it is-
Who to the soul gave life and bliss, the selfless ones, departed are!

Today the yogis disappeared, remembering them, I wept whole night;
Those whom I searched and so revered, are vanished never to return...

As men are hunting after food, would they journey's direction ask;
E'en creeping, they in holy mood
the track would find, and all woe.

And as for bread some chase, were they in self-same manner seek for God They'd drag themselves to find the way, and their sorrows then would end!
20
What feast is for the vulgar, know sweet hunger that for yogis is;
They love to keep the fast and go ne'er near where feasts they see.

The yogis that are favoring still delicious morsels, garments fine;
To get near God they never will but far away from Him they dwell.

as always wet they are...
They wake and weep and so they keep sleep at a distance far!

Alas! correctly you don't hear with ears appended to your head-
The 'Message' you should hear instead with ears that are within you placed.
24

In asinine ears do not trust, dispose of them without delay; Purchase such ears with which you may hear clearly the Beloved 'tale

Chapter-IV

25

Purpose that made them yogis,
so long that's not attained,
So long denouncers' life constrained
To tears and longing is.

They never laugh, nor do they feast-
With no man do converse-
In depths profound they do immerse
'These' are the mystery!
27

Where there's no height, no heaven,
And of the earth no trace;
Where moon doth never rise, nor sun
don't ever show his face;
There yogis see their limits,
And see their resting place-
Their clues reach far, till now their gaze Found in negation Reality!
Khahori-VIII (Wandering Ascetics)

Chapter-I

Traversing far off realms, O friends
Khahoris have returned at last;
Their feet covered with dust...what lands it came from—oh, how do I know.

On wild growths hill-ascetics feed, they seek the land ne'er known or heard—
Upon the dusty, stony grounds they lay their flanks when rest they need;
To seek the light they do proceed and seek it from infinity.

The hill-ascetics I did see,
those who do not in houses dwell;
In biting wind they weep like rain with longing for Divinity—
With sorrow they keep company, and live on sorrow day and night.

O old ragged ropes for shoes they wear;
their faces are dried up, and wan-O h, at that land they had a peep that learned ones could see no-where Secretive ones, have secrets rare of regions that still further lie.-

Their arms hold water-bags all dry-and on their feet ropes old and torn;
Eyes pouring rain...O passer-by A scetics such did e'er you meet!

Chapter-II

The load of truth cannot be borne upon the head, I fear,
And deaf you have to be, the call of Reality to hear.-
Make yourself blind, so that the dear Beloved you may see.
7

How beautiful is darkest night in which you lose world's way-Your greed for this and that,-O quite forgotten it will be.

8

The common road do not go near;
but walk where 'they' walk not;
Cross over then by longing mere and nothing take with thee.

9

Wanderers need no conveyance, no!
for horse do not care-Although their minds are set on destination far and fair;
In wastes search food...torn rags they wear,
and that their sign-mark is.
10
I saw the wand 'ers that a peep at the Beloved had;
One night I in their place did stay their company to keep.
To know them, is in drowning deep to have a safety raft.

11
Dust-covered they do walk their way,
and mix themselves with clay;
No secrets tell to stupid folk,
nor gossip or delay;
Some secret of the Loved-one they bear in their heart all-time.

12 Knowledge hides snakes, and many find folly as honey sweet,
Who passed them both...left both behind
he found the 'Reality'.
Chapter-III

Those who had lost their way were with a deep emotion stirred Those seers in the waste stood blind and nothing more they heard-Their ears were closed-like dumb they walked as if their minds were blurred...
Their only sorrow separation was which they incurred-All they gave up for 'Lahut', but for this they hungered-A sleep...awake...longing was spurred but never was allayed.

The spot where One Beloved dwells how happy 't is, how sweet-Turn off from places where you meet all the inhuman crowds.
15
Those who the bare hills came to know no more for harvests cared-
To G anjo-hills they longed to go Lahutis to become.

Those who the bare hills came to know
forthwith all books did close...
Their sleep had gone, for G anjo-hills their longing hearts did glow...
They yearned Lahutis to become when dust from hills did blow.-
From smell of hills left worldly show Lahutis to become.

17
See where the bird can never fly;
a tiny fire twinkles there-Who could have kindled it so high except the wandering, homeless kind?
Restless Khahoris did destroy their bodies in a holy mood
And so their spirit gained the food they had wished to obtain.

Wanders had girded up their loins... on heights they one with dust became,
So they at last had reached, their aim through sorrow mountains top had found.

(East)

Chapter-I

Dear crow, after obeisance fall at the Beloved's feet-Message I give thee, don't forget, in transit, I entreat,
I beg in God's name secretly
my message do repeat;
My words correctly and repeat;
convey just as say.

2

Come flying my dear crow, bring news back from the other side;
Sir down, a note of union strike, and all in me confide...
My loved-ones that seem to abide so far away, bring here.
3
From loved-ones, there in foreign lands bring news, and not delay-Thy feathers I will cover with a wealth of gold-array-Circle above his house, convey my message to my love.

Oh! crow, I'll tear my heart from this my breast with my own hands;
You peck at it before my love,
that dwells in foreign lands;
May be he says; "there are no friends that dare such sacrifice."

5
The crow is back, and sitting now
On yonder twig, quite near;
He came last night, and greetings sweet
Brought from my precious dear-Stop spinning sisters! that I hear
All what Beloved said.
6
The crow brought happy news for me,
   From the Beloved mine;
My wishes all have been fulfilled,
   No more I need repine-
M y life is joy, powers divine
   Have fruitful made my prayers.

A dog, a crow from loved-one's side
   Will so delight mine eyes!
On them my 'Self' I'll sacrifice
   A hundred times a day.

8
   Not make that crow a messenger
That doth for carrion search!
   Will he deliver messages
Or heed his stomach's urge?
W hat message carry will that scourge
   Whose speech is: “C aw, caw, caw?”
Chapter-II

In longing for my loved-ones I Do rove around all day;
Hoping he'll raise his eyes, and may Sweet recognition grant.

My comfort all is from those eyes,
That smilingly they raise;
Loved-one's smiles have relieved my woe
And all my sorrow flies...
World thinks their emaciation lies
In hunger, but from sorrow'tis.

11

At mid-night Eastern Yogis closed
Their house...I failed to hear
Their soul-converse, when gradually Dawn's pale lights did appear.-
Strange yogis, whose detachment here
E'en by compassion is not marred.
On high-way they already are,
To East, far East they roam-
And they have sacrificed this home
To build the future one.

The East has killed me...none I find
To whom I can complain;
Advising world, and guiding it,
I lost myself my mind-
I made love to higher kind
Who were not likes of mine.

14
You comfort seek, and call yourself
'Sami', yet are not trained;
At journey's start exhausted grew,
And more and more complained-
You had not even found a guide,...
To be consummate, so you feigned-
Your soul should be to 'Sami' chained
With 'Him' identified for aye.
To keep your greedy body fit,
You beg for grains pretentiously,
May be that you your ears have slit
Palate to lease with luxuries.
Bilwal-X
(The Tune of Life)

Chapter-I

1 Believe in word of invitation of the Giver kind;
Just rinse your mouth, and you will find that food you will receive.

Drive vulgar crowds out of the house, peace with the sovereign make-From that door then on favours browse receiving gifts each day.

Don't long for wine of paradise, cross over, nearer still-Between you and the Union lie rewards,...this do realise!
Sama's presence to find, arise!
your wishes to fulfill.
4

Sama, the crown is on your head else many leaders be-Oh, from your treasure house, such thousands beg the priceless bread,
And bounty rich for them is spread according to their bowls!

The kettle drums break one and all,
all hollow are inside
On no one but on Hashmi call
The door of Hashmi seek.

6

One who upholds those in despair, helps those who seek refuge;
This prop of humble ones, shirks not when millions crave his care...
Aghast all chieftains stand...but there the smiling one they spy!
7 Stop not at every watering place but seek the deep, full lake;
Head of the realm if you can reach there wait wealth and solace;
The one who made poor rich, only his turban try to trace, Tarnish of hundreds he'll erase,
when head he lifts and speaks!

8
All credit due to Jakhro is, others commands obey
This favorite's station, ah, where it be, no one can say;
From what he fashioned was, that clay was just enough for him.

Jakhro worthy is, and the rest
but name of 'king' do bear;
As Jakhro was produced, others that way no fashioned were;
Clay needed for his make so rare for him was just enough.
10
The leader's messages I store
so deep within my heart
Of other doors I think no more Since Jakhro I have seen!

11
No one like Jakhro I can see
On earth where're I gaze,
The leader of all leaders, of Exalted status he-
Two bows' length, even less, his place is from divine glory;
O lord, greatly you favored me
by giving me this guide!

Oh Jakhro, may you ever live;
Of you may I no evil hear-Solace to eyes and heart you give, their only sweet support, is you.
Oh leader, well your ways are known all over foreign lands;
How many have you set on horse backs that had weary grown?
You ask no faults of those who moan,
But all you do accept!

He even gives in anger...lo, when pleased his bounty pours, Benevolence doth overflow in noble Jakhro's mind.

15
Don't punish the obedient ones;
but head strong do destroy;
Forget not 'Battle Great', no joy no gain give battles small.
16
Come to the Major Battle, though many small battles fight...
And never cease to sweep away passion-worshiper's blight.
With the support of Hyder's light fight, and destroy the foe!

Jakhro adore! he who appeared the hunger of the land-
Those who were trembling in their rags in silken shawls now stand;
It was by noble Jakhro's hand the needy ones were filled!

18
The moment I arrived my feet were cooled, my thirst was quenched;
A desert walker water sweet had found in scorching waste.
19 Beneath whose shelter I do dwell noble man, may he live!
The waters that wayfarers drink,
may never dry that well...
Oh smiling one! mine eyes excel in comfort, seeing you.

Chapter-II

Vagand has now returned again,
his efforts all were vain...
So gladly would he here remain dress, food, bed to obtain!

Vagand has now returned again—
when all had got their share A beating from his wife he got, nought else she gave him there!
And now with zest he doth declare he'll e'er lie at my feet!
22

Ah...in the hope of breakfast fine
Vagand again is here;
He never more will leave this place,
nor will he leave his Pir-Perfume of spring he smells- so dear prospects of breakfast are!

In body he so shriveled looks, at eating he is great;
He smells...sweetness to cultivate he begs master for scent

24

Poor Vagand, now so dutiful is always at the door;
He loves perfumes so much...therefore,
he rakes the horse' dung.
Vagand has now returned again,
returned a hell complete!

He says: "Pir's heaven, dirty ones turns into roses sweet-Keep near perfumes, to be replete with clean, refreshing smells."
Sarang XI
(Rain Song)
Chapter-I

Warm preparations are again in progress everywhere;
A gain the lightning's have begun to leap with arduous flare;
Some towards Istanbul do dive, some to the West repair;
Some over China glitter, some of Samerquand take care;
Some wander to Byzantium, Kabul, some to Kandhar fare;
Some lie on Delhi, Deccan, some reach Girnar, thundering there
And greens on Bikanir pour those that jump from Jesalmare
Some Bhuj have soaked, others descent on Dhat with gentle air...
Those crossing Umerkote have made the fields fertile and fair...

O God, may ever you on Sindh bestow abundance rare; Beloved! all the world let share thy grace, and fruitful be.

Chapter-II

O see, the low' ring, somber skies!
the cumulous clouds have poured Their big-dropped showers; now take out your herds, prepare, and rise; Leave lower grounds, to uplands go and practise old device, Take your provisions and supplies... despair not of God's grace.

Today too from the northern side
the rain-quails notes reach here;
The ploughers ploughshares ready make,
herdsmen are full of cheer...
Today too nature doth appear in rich array of rain!
4

Today too there are hopes of rain,
the clouds are dark and low-O friends, with monsoons, longing for the loved one comes again-I hope the rain will water well the parched and longing plain...
Beloved come! my life sustain,
all seasons then feel spring.

5

Man, deer and buffaloes do pant for rain, ducks hopes for clouds; After as though in supplication sounds the rain-quail's chant;
At sea, each morn the oysters beg that skies the rain may grant-Give lots of rain! with joy rampant the herdsmen then become.
The rain pours on the desert-sands on hills and vales around;
At early dawn we, rise to hear,
the churns soft, humming sound-
The hands are full of butter, wives with merriment abound-Each buffalo for milking brought athwart the grassy ground;
In thatches here we never found mistress and mind so glad!

The cloud, with colours rich and bright paints towers in the skies-It brought the violins, zitherns, flutes, tambors that give delight...
While jar on jar rain-sprite at night pours into Padam lake...
8 Season's orchestra's in full swing,
fresh showers ease the mind;
On mountain-side so green with grass;
cattle abundance find;
Gay herdsmen's wives about their necks of blossoms garlands wind;- Cucumbers, mushrooms, vegetables food of every kind;
Lord! days of dearth let lie behind, ne'er let them reach the earth.-

Season's orchestra's in full swing,

rain-quails pipe tenderly; Peasants repair their ploughs, herdsmen rejoice with ecstasy-My friend in perfect from...O see predicts a downpour great!
Season's orchestra's in full swing,
clouds move up, near and far;
The grain is cheap, and brimful now of butter is each jar-Rust that my heedless heart did mar, this God-reminder cleansed.

Cloud was commanded: 'Rain must come',
and cloud obeyed so fain-Lightning arrived, rain pattered, poured,
came to remain and reign;
The hoarder who for dearness hoped now wrings his hands in vain, Five multiplied to fifteen; so the page has turned again,
The profiteer may disappear and cause no longer pain...
The kine-herds sit together now, relating tales of rain-O God, who happiness would gain, must on thy grace rely!
Chapter-III

O, rain, were lessons you to take from my poor, pouring eyes, Then night and day, in cloudy guise your drizzle would not stop!

Mists do not leave mine eyes, if clouds are there or not, mists stay; Remembering Loved one, o'er my cheeks
my tears flow night and day...
O h, those whose loves are far away may never cease to weep.

14
Though inside all is overcast, outside from every cloud is free...
Lightning's mature within, in whom Love doth reside eternally...
Their eyes shall never rainless be in whom thought of 'Beloved' reigns.

Suriraag-XII (Sailing)

Chapter-I

1

O friend, I often did beseech an old boat do not have;
With worn out sails, the heavy wave

2

Thy boat oil daily, mend its leaks, and keep in mind, one day
The vessel has to sail away, a voyage long to make!

With riggings furnish it, and then take it to depth remote,
So that from every harm thy boat secure and safe may be.
4

A cquire you such merchandise which time corrupteth not,
That when you sell to far off lands
no loss may be thy lot-In goods deal only which allot to thee mainstay secure.

5

Those who with merchandise of Truth
a lasting bargain made;
"You will get your reward", to them these tidings are conveyed-Those were they whom the Powers led through mighty ocean's swell.

To ocean dedicate yourself where endless waters flow;
Thousands of pearls and precious things its current holds below-An ounce of such wealth will bestow, on you a fortune rare.
7

No wave the path of those can stay who worship the sublime; Effect of their repentance makes them safely swim away; Propped by 'Reliance absolute'
they pass wild current's sway, By 'Perfect Sailor' met were they in mid-current, as guide!

8

With precious ware of 'service great'
their vessels they did lade;
'Real Recognition's' pearls they won whose worth can never fade;
'Restraint from sin and evil', oh-that bargain too they made;
May with their blessing I evade perils, when crossing sea!
So difficult it is to fare on the path to 'Divine'.
So difficult, so very hard the way, for those who dare-
And even those who know the land confusion meets them there;
Its violent cross-current to bear enter with love intense!-

Chapter-II

Goods there were heaps and manifold, traders forgetful were;
Some came in good time and purchased all that the stores did hold-Some loitered, and all things were sold when they had come to buy.
11
The water through the boat did seep, and precious goods were spoiled;
With spots and smudges some were soiled and some with rust got black.

You came and had at shores a peep, that you had heard about.-
When everyone had gone to rest,
you also went to sleep;
And so you brought the boat headlong to whirlpools wild and deep-The wreck that is too worn and old may God from sinking keep-
The wretched ones inside rely on you, they fret and weep,
A rise and help! their praises reap and bring them safe to port!
13

Boatman, upon the raging sea both ways you cannot have;
Whole nights you sleep, resting your back on rudder carelessly
But there across at morn they'll be and of your doings ask!

Sleep not O helmsman! shun your cot, when danger lurks ahead;
The shore is foaming like the curd that foams in churning pot...
O helmsman, sleep befits you not in such an awful state!

15

The divers met the waves that foamed with hidden treachery-They battled with the eddies deep,
their fight was grim and dree;
Yet, 't was they who sought the sea,
and brought the lovely pearls.

16 Where'er a pearl exists, behold!
the thieves their haunts will have,
And him awaits fortune untold who guards the pearl from thieves.

Chapter-III

17
Not offer precious stones to those who know not gold from brass;
To true jewellers in exchange your jewels you may pass;
A h, those who deal in gold, the mass of metals base they spurn.

But gold-dealers have gone...O h gold
't were best you too should go-Since no one here your worth doth know they'll mix you up with brass.
The glass-beads are in fashion now real pearls no more appeal...
My tunic's full of Truth, I feel ashamed to offer it.

The lapidaries that cut gems,
since long from there they fled;
And their successors do not know e'en how to deal with lead,
And smiths now pewter beat instead where lapidaries worked!

I dealt in glass, and never made purchase of any pearl;
All tinsel-stuff and leaden ware and trash I bought instead;
But suddenly, I found, my trade was placed with gold-experts!
With falsehoods I did pass my days;
divine commands I broke-
The vessel overflows with sin and with my doings base;
Oh knower of the secret ways thou know 'st already all!

The lies that you had hugged, forsake!
approach the source divine Drive from your heart chicanery, to honest dealings take;
The Master liketh truth of heart
In mind love's fire wake, Thus humbly do approach, and make a bargain, fruitful, good.
O God! a bargain that is best,
I beg bestow on me;
The helpless one no power has,
but Master, turns to thee,
O guide, without thy help no one can reach his destiny-Who faces high wave on the sea, with mercy pick him up...

Chapter IV

The maid unwarily
the gem in casket broke...
The gem when whole, its price
a lakh or two would be,
Now it is crushed...ah me,
'tis more than millions worth!
Those who kept up all night to adore Glorious One; Latif says: E'en their dust became with honour dight; Scores to their resting site flock, homage there to pay.

(Mariners)

Chapter-I

1 Lady, at moorings do remain;
and so prevent the mariners,
From plunging you in sudden pain by setting sail all suddenly.

2
Lady, at moorings do reside, and keep the fire in your heart; Burn on, that mariners abide with you, not leave you suddenly.

At moorings settle down, nor try to take a rash and careless step, Or else they will not wait, but will at once to foreign regions hie,
You knew their home was ocean...why did you not with them go?

Anchor and chains lifted, they are already far upon the way Desolate are port and bazaar for mariners have sailed away.

When loved-ones did voyaging start
I was in youth, my blossom-time,
Oh friend, my weeping could not hold my merchant-love, he would depart;
On fire did he set my heart and then did sail away.

6

They sailed away! leaving you here-eons have passed and none came back, Sorrow for vanished ones, alack will surely kill you poor one!
7

They sailed along so very far,
Till to the mighty deep they got,
Where swell of ocean swept them off,
and swiftly down and down they shot, Descending to the traceless spot which is fathomless ness!

8

Ah me! a mixture of deep woe are nuptial ties with mariners;
My body he on spikes laid low,
and then my merchant hoisted sail.

May you forget the trade you learnt-
-But yesterday I met you here Today I see you disappear sailing on ocean waves!
10
My love seems feeble, luckless fate;
They pushed the boat off ere I knew;
With sailors yesterday a bond
I should have made, today's too late.
Why did I not throw myself straight Into the boat, with hawsers bound?

11
I at the pier did stand when they
Their anchor lifted and set sail.
On God relying, night and day
I shall not cease for them to pray
My longing sighs my life shall sway
Till to my arms they do return!

Chapter-II

On foot I cannot reach...they say so far from me the ports do lie;
No fare in pinafores or purse
I possess for the strip to pay;
Oh ferry-man, so manage that
The dearly loved-one meet I may;
In anguish at thy door I stay
Each day beseeching thee with tears.
13
A las! no one doth lift a hand-no one will have them in the boat...
Without a fare, and at the shore all day till sunset they did stand-Then God Almighty help did send, and to the landing place they got!

14
The wives of merchants, waiting there,
Did bring their offerings to the sea;
Bright lights they kindled everywhere
And even musk to waters gave.

Ah...now the mast-flag is in sight,
Although the sails not yet they see...
And thrilled with infinite delight
Are those who loved-ones do expect.
16

The ploughers of the salty deep,
The waters sweet have entered now;
Their inmates bargained not for gold
But greater wealth they wished to reap,

The flourishing mariners, lo
Port of Ceylon for pearls did sweep,
And safely in the boat they keep
The treasures they in “Lanka” found.

Oh sisters, if to my homestead
My love would come, what joy for me-
Handfuls of pearls around his head
I'll turn, and then to others throw.

18

For those, for whom I sacrificed,
Did worship waters, kindle lights-
My hopes all have been realized,
My loved-ones have returned to me!
19

She kindled lights on land and sea
And pretty tufts to trees she tied
"Oh God I have great hope in Thee My Loved-one, back to me let come."

She who to sea no offerings makes,
And doth not kindle floating lights-
Is not in earnest, hath no stake,
Beloved she will never meet.

Chapter-I

You noble are, I humble am the seat of demerits am I Seeing your queens, O king, your eye turn not away from fisher-folk.

You noble are, I humble am scores of defects abide with me
When heaps of smelling fish you see,
turn not away from fisher-folk.

You are king, master of the land and I sell fish, poor fisher-maid,
Do not forsake me, for't is said that I, oh king, belong to thee.

4
Those who do feed on smelling fish, and fish is all their property-
The king, the noble king, O see!
with them relationship has made-
The basket full of smelling fish, and all the loaded herring-trays-Fishers, whose touch avoided is and such unpleasantness conveys
The king strands in their thatch always and gently holds converse with them!

Chapter-II

Now she longer catches fish, nor cuts, cooks, cures as formerly;
She neither holds the scales and weight, not fish-net in her hands we see-Now to the court-modes cleaveth she, such as befits a kingly house!
7

Her hands and feet, her face and form no more of fisher-maid remind-
As there's a chief-string in the lute she's queen of all the queens combined;
From the beginning all her ways were queenly, noble and refined,
The king perceived it and did bind the regal bracelet on her wrist!

8

Fie upon maids of princely caste who walk stiff-necked, so haughtily-Praise to the daughter of the lake, her true love to the king gave she...

Out of all royal ladies, he,
the pearl bestowed on fisher-maid.
Chapter-III

9
Court-ladies now adorn themselves, to win king back with beauty spells-
But king midst fisher people dwells, within his hand the fishing-net!

10
The fishing-net in hands of king, and fisher-maid did rudder sway!
Upon the lake all yesterday fish-hunting gay was going on!

11
“On deep, clear waters of the lake, with my beloved now I sail,
Of my desires none did fail,
all are fulfilled, none went astray.”

12
Upon the waters transparent, along the banks float lotus-flowers,
And all the lake rich fragrance showers as sweet as musk when spring-winds blow.
Chapter-IV

Credit of raising fisher-maid
Belongs to Tamachi,
He took her in his carriage, and a human-being he Made out of her,...in Keenjhar, see!
All say this is the truth.

Of those before the 'jam' was born
the fish-maid nothing knows,
They don't attend ceremonies, go not to weddings, nor to shows,
What hath lake-life to do with those?
they only know the head, the king.
...N one gave king birth, to no one birth gave H e-H e's generous,...alone-
  The fisher women old and young, as H is relations H e doth own;
"H e is not born, H e gives no birth"
  blance unique, to change unknown Tamachi's high eternal throne, so great and oh, so glorious is!

(Tribulations)

Chapter-I

1

Now or after, my destiny is my Beloved one-
The labour of poor one, O God let it in vain not be I beg for nothing, but to see my loved-one in this life

2

Sasui’s heart breaks from pain's torment and rends all hearts around; Immaculate Sasui, her eyes are e'er on Punhu bent;
Her virtuous mind on Beauty of the glorious One intent; Faithful up to the last...all spent-the maid in mountains dies.
3 Sasui, undone by longing, yet affects the longing more; Drank deep of Punhu's company and yet for more doth fret; Aye, still more thirsty they do get who drink draughts from this stream.

Seeing the flood of Beauty, they who drank a sip from there It all the more increased their thirst their longing and despair;
Although they live in mid-stream ne'er this boundless thirst is quenched, 5

Sasui, before you follow Punhu, feel your utter helplessness;
Take naught for granted, attitude unservant like do not possess;
Oh, with yourself take only love,
and without 'Self' you must progress...
Make no approach to Azazil,
to save yourself from deep distress;
Keep company with hopelessness
so that you nearer come to hope.

Do not rejoice in comfort, seeing sorrow do not fear...
In sacrifice don't crush your own,
nor houses new do rear;
Dead one, don't die, in no case here
try to maintain your life.
Chapter-II

Ah, those that are from longing free
how Kech can ever reach?
Such wishful hundreds did I see that ere mid-way gave up.

8
Each doth express a wish, but none ready for hunger is...
To walk is not for every one.
or make a trip like this-
I take for company, I was, one who not loves the 'Self'.

9
I pledged my troth when innocent;
suspecting no torment;
Nor knew brothers in law would leave with me longing, lament...
The longing one, on seeking bent
Must now through mountains roam.
10

O sisters, when my troth I plighted ignorant was I;
O r with my mountaineer's subjection
    how could I comply?
A brief talk did my being tie to Punhu for all life.

11

Those, who do husbands own, return-
    I'll not come without mine;
To search the deepest mountain depth and turn each stone, I yearn,
To settle love's account I burn with camel-riders there.

Chapter-III

Frail one, do never slow your pace when seeing mountains high...
The threatening mountains do not fear,
    and keep your love-ablaze;
And never give up hope to see your loved-ones lovely face-Don't seek him in a far-off place, he's nearer than your eyes.
Those who took off from 'here' their mind and fixed it 'there', they reached; Beloved, Beauty, Truth to find for them one step it was.

Kechis are speaking-now Sasui
you should become an ear;
The breath that comes from them, but silence can distinguish here;
Sir silently, and only 'hear',
that fire you may acquire.

Now be an ear-the Kechis speak;
no word must come from thee;
And not an iota of your 'I' should in their presence be...
Behold, the Kechis cut the tree of being from the root.
Sometimes ones should become an ear;
sometimes a mouth should turn-Sometimes like knife one should appear sometimes a lamb become.

Chapter-IV

Your love is not where you surmise;
and where you think he be,
Walk not to mounts, the wood you have to cross within you lies;
Your being ask for all advice and strangers keep outside.

Sasui, within yourself you bear
what you are seeking so;
No one found ever anything by walking here and there,- As though he your own being were so seek his whereabouts.
19
Why do you go to woods remote?
why not your love search here?
Believe, not hiding anywhere is your beloved Hoat;
Be pure, gird up your loins, faithful upon you loved-one dote
Look deep into yourself and note
Beloved's home is there.-

20
Not with your feet keep wandering but with your heart do walk
A courier's job will never bring you anywhere to Kech.

While peeping in myself I was...
I with my soul conversed;
No camel-man was there to chase,
all mountains had dispersed;
'Punhu' I had become...immersed in woe, but 'Sasui' was.
22
I was deceived by my fancy—or else Punhu myself I was;
I lost myself in presence of the prince's noble majesty;
Unless you yourself loved—one see
No iota worldly knowledge helps.

23
Once you give up existence, know you are near the unique—Refuge seek in: "whate'er I saw God was in it", and lo
Then your Beloved cannot go from you one minute mere.

24
Your love is in your lap, and yet you ask: "where is he, where"?
O understand, he's in your soul to see him wont you care?
No one to the Bazar will fare Beloved there to find.
25

I hunted for my rider-swain;
vain was the search I made,
The clue of him I got was: “God dose everything pervade;
He Himself is in every blade without Him nought exists.”
I careless was first part of night;
so morning brought despair-
For while I slept my rider-spouse for travel did repair;
For my destruction to prepare at mid-night they did leave.

O mountain-, that does stand between my love and me, thy threat is vain-Had there a thousand mountains been my longing would have crossed them all.

The sacred knot that love has tied between Punhu and me...
Now in beauteous Bhamore to stay Poison for me shall be...
Do not advise me sisters, to return to home and glee;
Because my breath is property of my beloved Hoat.
4

With longing I lay down, with eyes awake and found no slept, he came and then I could not rise-Sisters I erred, for in what wise is longing kin to sleep?
Sasui: Kohiyari-XVII

(The Mountain Path)

Chapter-I

1 Careless one, drop this drowsiness;
no more for slumber seek-

O shameless one, drive sleep from eyes and be no longer weak-
So that you may not have to shriek in mountains after him-

Those who upon their couches lay, with outstretched legs, alas...
The company did pass away, leaving such sleeping ones.

3 Reproach comes to unlucky ones who so much sleep desire;
Why after Punhu do enquire who sleep from sunset on?
4 Hard-hearted mount, vain was my plea, high-handed tyrant thou;
My being you sawed, as wood-cutters
do cut the helpless tree;
But for decree of Destiny
Oh, who would walk thy stones?

5
O mountain, when my love I meet;
your tortures I'll relate;
Your hideous shadow ghosts at dawn,
your winding way's deceit,
You did me not with kindness treat but dimmed the loved-one's tracks.

O silent mountain, not a clue
you give me my love-But yesterday a camel-cade in long row moved through you,
This dead one's spouse, did you not view amongst the company?
7

O mountain, to the friend I'll bear
    at once the gret reproach;
That you to shreds the very soles
    of my poor feet did tear;
That your soul is of pity bare and ne'er any worth you know.

8

O mountain, hearts of sorrowing ones
    you should console and soothe;
Instead of that, their feet you bruise-you stony, callous one.

9

O mountain, each day in sacrifice
    I throw myself on you-Because there are mysterious ties
    'twixt you and my love's tale.

O mount, the helpless one in woe
    now sits with you and weeps;
But never anyone lets know the links twixt you and her.
11

O mountain, though you hot have grown you cannot harm me now;
You may be made of hardest stone my limbs are iron-made-
't is no one's fault, it is my own my own strange destiny.

Chapter-II

O Punhu do not leave me here in mountains weird and dire-I'll walk with you on foot, and fire to Bhambore I will set.

Reflection of my Punhu, light
it doth display and shade;
I have to walk the chequered road...

O see, the cloth is laid In soda-wash, and clean is made erere colours it receives.
14 Reflection of my Punhu is like cloud and flash, and I Follow this Prince and sob and sigh and weep without respite.

Reflection of my Punhu is the acme of all Bliss-
For his sake my most luckless day for me comfort it is Calamity my Prince left, his sweetest gift for me.
Chapter-I

1

Hast thou not heard a voice Sasui?
or dost at random walk?
Hundreds of Sasui's walked behind their lovers before thee-From start Baluchi progeny has no compassion learnt

2

O grieving one; brush pain aside, and comforts do forget-
Your eyes on Punhu's footprints set, that you may find him soon.

3

Start on the road denuded, greed, temptations do not keep-
And those who are too fond of sleep, their tryst with loved-one miss.
4 Leave all your lovely robes behind, and nothing with you bring;
One, burdened not with anything
Keeps forefront on the way.

5
One that without a burden walks will soon the loved-one meet-But she has missed her union sweet who affects lovely wraps.

6
She who adorns herself, in vain
waits for the meeting true;
She is deprived like Leela, who sold her love for jewels.

Chapter-II

7
A thousand thorns do prick my feet;
they cause me endless woe!
Alas, my feet are torn, one toe meets not the other toe;
And yet, with bare feet I will go to my beloved one.
8

With hands, feet, knees, and every breath
   Sasui you must proceed;
   Your guide will meet you at the stream and give you further lead;
   As long there's breath, place naught, indeed
   But Punhu in your heart.

9

I could not my Beloved meet and now you set, o sun!
   My message to the loved-one bring before my day is done;
   when you reach Kech say: "Helpless one is dying on the way".

I could not reach my loved-one, and my life's already past...
   Alas, the woeful one did waste her days declining fast-
   In old age now, her eyes are cast upon her Punhu rare.
11
A las, I could not reach my love-already death appears...
Beloved did not come, although
I looked for him for years Destroyed by separation's tears
I destined am to die.

12
Die and relieve, so that Beauty of loved-one leaves you never;
Acceptable you'll be for ever, accepting this advice.

13 Die to be beautiful, life is hindrance twixt him and you,- Helpless one, boldly do pursue, give breath to find the friend.

Who die before death, never will destroyed by dying be.- Who live ere second life they see will live eternally.
Sasui: Husaini-XIX

(The Wailings)

Chapter I

1

O look not back! nor hesitate, for sun declines in West-Thy pace do quicken, do not rest ere sunrise try to reach

2

O sun, make it not hard for me,
by setting very soon:
The tracks of Punhu let me see ere I in mountains die.

3

A rain is pouring from my brow, hot perspiration's stream;
What I thought love, revealed is now consuming fire flame.

4

The day is burning, she doth move
now swifter on her way;
This Brahmin girl, an ancient love for the Bluchis has.

Translated In Verse By Elsa Kazi
5
As long you live, aglow remain;
there's no way without fire;
In hot and cold, swift pace maintain there is no time to rest.

On rising, thought of mountaineers did overwhelm me there;
I shall leave Bhambore, nought endears this Bhambore to my heart.

Sisters, for pleasures of Bhambore
the caravan I missed; Therefore I now with sorrow sore
the mountains have to search.

8 Sisters, your freedom do secure by leaving Bhambore now;
Our old comrades here did endure much sorrow and much pain.
9
In B hambore is the smoke of hell; Sisters, from B hambore part-Sasui take the guide and start early and not delay.

10 Sisters, my heart is sorrow-cleft.
and wounded I do live...
Of loved-ones all, for whom I long alas, I am bereft;
Can I forget those who have left e'en now before my eyes?

11
B hambore, the town of ugliness,
the noble prince adorned;
Lord of the mountains, from whole world removed fear and distress,
M aids art of printing learnt, model was P unhu,s loveliness-U nrivalled one, B hambore did bless and decent it became.
12
The Bham bore that not walked behind the Hoat, confounded got;
Unrivalled One, the town did not recognize, walked like blind;
Those privileged were, who did find his beauty with their hearts.

13
Who saw him with their hearts, did feel to follow him at once;
When Punhu did himself conceal e’en then they followed him.

In hot and cold incessantly walk on, and do not wait;
At fall of night you will not see the tracks of him you seek.

15
There was a time when princely Hoat my clothes to wash did choose;
Now even camel men refuse to take me with themselves.

Translated In Verse By Elsa Kazi
16
My gown is at my shoulders torn;
   alas my head is bare-
O sisters in your Bhambore fair
   What have I now to do?

Chapter-II

From grief and woe she did obtain the lead, to walk the way;
It was from guidance of the pain she Punhu found at last.-

A hundred comforts I will give and bargain too my head,
If in exchange I may instead a single sorrow get.

19
Sweet sorrow, do not you depart
   as went away my love...
To none I may pour out my heart but you, since he has left.
20 Sorrow, joys' beauty constitute;
joys without sorrows spurn;
By virtue of such sorrow's mood my love comes to my arms

21
We walk in fellowship with 'Care' but keep the world at bay-When even very young we were, sorrow made home with us.

Chapter-III

22
Those who are seeking for the friend,
one day the friend will find;
The seeking ones will at the end reach loved-ones domicile.-

23
No more alive...or dead...yet death
I feel is claiming me...
Beloved...I give up my breath in longing now for thee.- 24 Had you died yesterday, you’d met your Punhu yesterday,
All hale-and-hearty, never yet succeeded finding love.

As soon or late I death must see;
may I in mountains die...
Sisters, so that my death should be on my Beloved's count.

26
Better in mountains cut and sore, striving for Punhu, die-That all the world for ever more thy love shall glorify.

27
She follows in pursuit, calls, cries-but smiles when tracks she finds;
Who turns one step back when she dies shall ne'er the loved-one see.
28
As night advances, swifter grows her step and swifter still...
Her innocent mind nothing knows but the word: “rider-spouse”.

29
Don't cease to call persistently; keep calling, begging still-
Then riding-men may suddenly relax, remembering thee.

30
To whate'er you in life adhere,
Links after death remain;
And those who cannot see
How will they see him ‘there’?
Leela-XX

By jewels tempted, necklace bright you craved,.....so satan scores did cheat;
You lost your spouse through his deceityour era then of weo began.

2

The jewelis no jewel-nay,
nor necklace worth to tempt your heart;
Its origin is clay and bits of glass it doth betray;
C ursed trinket, in its fine array made many from the loved-one part.-

3

Pendant of sorrow was, what you a necklace though to be;
Y our lord decked your maid with grace which he from you withdrew.
May no discord part lovers true and union break in twain.
4

By show she slipped...and by conceit
she fell, shattered was she;
World came to her, called her a fool reproaches she did meet.
They burnt her heart with scorn to death-er her downfall was complete.
All her youth's blossoms, fragrant, sweet dried up with in her heart.

Exalted amongst friends; I was the wise one in the land; Something upset the balance-and now I must hang my head.

6

I was in Chanesar 's domain first lady, and at social feasts
First was I called, and always first, until my heart grew vain;
He thrust me off..with shame and pain
now lowest in the land I am.
7
With Chanesar's affection let no wanton maiden play;
No place for coquetry is this
I learnt to my regret-His disapproval doth beget sorrow for happy ones.

8
With zest, all lofty ones have decked, their necks with diamonds fine; Hundred devices they employ before the loved-one to shine;
But the beloved dose incline to those who meekly walk.

9 Discard your former ways, be free from all you learnt before; Humility's scarf round your neck do wear...with poverty
Do link yourself, Leela, and see He'll never let you down.
10

W ise Leela, you have known so well
the nature of your Lord...

W ith diamonds round your neck, you thought to cast on him a spell.-

In reading thoughts he does excel
Discerner H e of hearts.

11

O G od, let me not clever be,

\[\text{clever ones sorrows see-}\]

Loved-one all favours did to me when I was simpleton.

T he meeting place of town, Elite my house was formerly-

But when I diamonds touched, my spouse did loathe my very sight;

A ll his affection vanished quite and sorrow's reign commenced.
13
The happiness that grows from mind self-centered, cursed it be; Unhappiness seek, which will find the priceless love for thee!

14 Avoid to show off, argue not with Chanesar.. beware-To you nor me beloneth He and many more are there, Who once by Him much favoured were and now weep at his door.-

15
Leela, if by beseeching Him
He won't forgive your fall-Keep on beseeching more all more on his compassion call-Despair not, your pains he knows all-immense His mercy is.
16

Despair not, rise and cleanse the house;
prepare to sacrifice Ancestors, 'Self' and all, there lies the cleaning process true.-
Mumal and Rano-XXI

Chapter-I

1
With love, all unalloyed, is dight Yogi entirely-
Like image at rising sun
He flutters, he Kak, where with delight
Virgins enlivened him.

2
The yogi looks like sun so fair,
When scaling morning-skies
Such sweet entrancing fragrance pours
From out his silken hair;
Show us the land, where fragrance rare
O yogi you obtained!

3
O loin-clothed, one, let us know,
The way you virgins met
Why from your eyes continuously
The tears of blood do flow?
O Sami! on us light bestow
Of beauty that you found!
4 “Go, go, to waters of Kak go where love is made, they say;
Where there is neither night nor day all shall Beloved see!

5 Resplendent diamonds gleam within Magnetic Mumal's eyes...
Common or uncommon, who tries to see these eyes, is slain.

6
O camel, for such enterprise master bred you with care;
With vigilance cross over now to where Ludhana lies; Mumal we have to face this eve,
or when the sun doth rise;
With her consent on Kak's supplies of blossoms you may browse.
Beautiful like the roses sweet are robes of damsels fair...
In Jasmin-fragrant coiffuers they have piled their long, fine hair.
From Beauty so entrancing, love is kindled everywhere;
Wondrous show, damsels spinning there on-lookers dumb-struck gaze.

Like fresh pan-leaves are shawls they wear of shimmering emerald silk-Their bodies all refreshed with attar and ambergris rare;
From fulsome platis sandal and musk perfume all round the air;
And delicate ears, dainty ware of glistening gold do hold-Today Mumal's in glorious from rejoicing, free from care; Because Rano without compare, her fiancée hath become!...
9 Mumal had wounded many, lo
she's wounded now instead-A pointed arrow struck her head from knightly Rano's bow.-

Chapter-II

Although Rano not destined is Mumal to be with thee-
This will be clear from Rano's love...
still not resentful be,
Weep not, but bear it patiently,
Be true to kinship new.

11
Kak could not hold those wanderers
Castles not tempt their mind...
No maid or mistresses their hearts with magic strings could bind
For e'er Lahutis left behind myraids of maids as these.- 12
Kak could not hold those wanderers for wealth they did not care,- It was by men of such a mould royal virgins wounded were-Lahutis they could not ensnare with all their coquetry.

They passed Kak at the corner, long that corner turned have they...
To those who are now far away what shall some 'Natir' do?

Chapter-III

Ludhana is a hell mere without Beloved mine; Friends, Rano took offence last night and left me torture here...
And Kak to me is poison sheer the moment he is gone.
15
O Rano, hardly had you come,
you turned and went away
But were you not my spouse? why not to wake me did you stay?
Then soon you would have known who lay beside me on the bed.

16
Whole night my lamp did burn, but see the dawn is breaking now;
Rano without thee I shall die-
In God's name come to me
Oh—all the crows of Kak to thee as messenger I sent.

17
I trimmed the wick, again, again, oil is consumed at last Stranger-beloved, do return riding a camel fast;
Weeping for Rano, night is past,
the whole of night I wept.
18

O rion stands above my head;
Pleiades have declined...
The time is past...he did not come Rano, for whom I pined-Fie on cursed night, without my love it passed, and left me woe-confined-
To give me hell, he did not mind now rests he in his dhat.

19

Rano, I weep when I behold
the empty places here Dust settled on beds and divans so drab looks all and cold; Unused by master pillows lie, and nought but dust they hold-Without you, trees and flowers fade and never more unfold...
Who would bear my freaks mainfold but my Mendharo dear?
20 Continuous I watch your way, mine eyes are at the door-
May you come back to me Rano,
I heaven do implore;
You hold my life, else many more of Rano's world contains.

21
I did not realize my sweet,
the faults I did commit;
They now recoil on me, and hit me justly in the face.

22
't was by your patience, I became a human being dear-
't was through a whim of mine, my name, myself, you came to know.
23

If Mendharo to my own house would come as guest, to stay with me-To flames I'd give self-consciousness my knowledge and my ancestry;
Pride egoism I would throw Into the stove, most certainly My sacrifice for loved-one be the home, parents, myself.

24

Who with a lion doth ally herself, must steady be-Affectionate and vigilant
In Rano's wake do lie-
O Mumal, not like rain do pour
On all that you come by...
When resurrection day is nigh
you will of Rano think.
25
Go straight ahead, and look not back nor turn this side or that,
Or else, a temple-turning smack unwarily you receive.

Chapter-IV
26
A messenger! in haste he is
By he is sent;
With promise: "one you love will reach Ludhana for your bliss;
The speedy camel will not miss to enter Kak at D awn."

27
A message great and new arrived from Mendharo last night;
We have received a gift divine,
from Giver of all light-
"Ask not for caste-all we invite all are accepted here."
28
Where need I drive the camel? when Glory all round is beaming?
Kak in my being doth radiate,
In me's Ludhano gleaming;
Of Rano sweet my soul is dreaming
there is none else but 'He'.

29 Where need one drive the camel? when great radiance reigns all round?
In my being is Kak...in me gardens and springs abound;
There is no other voice or sound
But all is 'Mendharo'.

(Beloved)

Chapter-I

1

O say, to what end you to others would a servant be?
O f G en'rous one hold stirrup, Lord of worlds and D estiny?
W ho loves A llah alone, but he supremely happy is!

2

A reed doth murmur with distress when cut, so even I C ry suddenly for loved-one in a fit of wretchedness;- O leech, brand not my arm, sickness and pain are in the heart!
My breath no longer is my own—ruled now by other power—
How is my breast assailed by woe that has a mountain grown?
My love, in dream Himself had shown, brought joy, and then had gone!

When longing for you in despair,
Loved-one if once you came—
My eye lashes upon your feet
I’d lay in humblest prayer
I’d for your carpet spread my hair and be your slave for aye!

Beloved, all from thee is good!
but still, ‘t was not thy way,
To take me mad with love and then depart with changing mood;
And let me die in solitude, e’en though you loved me not!
Chapter II

6

Today again mine eyes are drenched, remembering the loved one-
The drops of tears never cease to flow, till all my being, s blenched;
Longing for loved-one is not quenched by looking at His works!

7

Today they called, with eyes so kind;
and killed me with their eyes...
My flesh they distributed and left skeleton behind-Did urge to search for truth and practice patience in the mind;
They killed her whom they dead did find aft'r wounding with smiles!
8

Sometimes their doors with latches tied,
0 n other days wide open are;
Some days I cannot enter, some they call me with them to abide-Sometimes I for their voices long;
some days their secrets they confide;
Such are my masters glorified, beloved masters mine!

9

O you, my dear beloved Sir, thy slave I wholly am;
With folded hands I ever serve,
thy presence I desire;
Not for a minute from your door
O sir, I would retire,
I pray; Beloved do not tire-
Thy kind looks not withdraw!
10

When with infinite grace, Beloved Doth walk upon the ground;
With "Bismillah" earth on H is path prints kisses all around-The 'houris' by H is beauty struck stand with submission bound-I swear, that never I have found such Beauty any where!

11

As smith a link with link doth join to make it ever last,
So Loved-one fixed me up, and fast
He holds me ever more!

Chapter-III

The worlds is passing soon or late,
one breath it is, not long;
And with their feet they'll bury you a tomb will be your fate;
The measuring rod and spade, do wait as last things on this earth.
13 Friendship by words they do profess;
an easy thing to do;
The proof will come when need and stress
the real friends will reveal.

14 Changed Adam's children now do treat sincerity as trifle;
Who on this earth a human being's flesh would like to cat?
O friend in this world nothing will remain but perfume sweet, O ne single-minded you may meet all else is outward show!

The heart loves only O ne and more it never doth admit;
Give your heart to that O ne, even If hundreds sue for it;
R idiculous are those that flit for friends from door to door!
16

My loved ones, all my blemishes... weaknesses came to know;
They never did reproach me...nay, nor did they anger show-
Loved-ones a covering did bestow o'er all my shortcoming!

17
The Generous One, presence of loved ones kindly granted me-
Their thoughts were to return and re-establish harmony;
Their way is: though a breech there be they never will forsake.
Dahar-XXIII (Desert)

Chapter-I

1 Relation to us some tale, O thorn;
tale of this lake relate;
O f moonlit-nights that did adorn the place, and how you fared.

2
Be calm, and tell us what you know of keepers of this lake.
Today in wretched plight and woe difficult days you pass.

3
Did really all thy friends depart?
thy loving associates?-.
With crimson fruit thou laden art that fall all over thee.
4
If for the masters of this lake,
you would such sorrow feel,
How could you lovely blossoms make and such a wealth of fruit?

5
The lake is dry, and brushwood grows about the dusty banks;
And human being rarely shows his face about the place.

Chapter-II
6
When waters ran abundantly big fish, you wouldn't return; Today, tomorrow you will be in net of fishing-folk.

7
O fish, you grew so over-fat,
Butting against all that you met;
Expanse of water now hath set Dried is what once you saw.
8

“Into my heart their hook they thrust-the very flesh they cleft,
They did not kill right-out, but left perpetual sorrow's line.”

As great as is 'Thy' name, so great the mercy I implore-Without pillars without supports,
Thou my refuge e'er more-When Thou knowest everything before ah me...why should I ask?

10

Beloved, do not slacken thou
Thy ties with humble me;
One so contemptible has got no other hold but thee...
Only thy sweet name, verily
I know and remember.
Chapter III

11

Few nights of earth...o'er which your head
you lost O h simpleton...
Oh many more will come, when dead you quite alone will lie.-

12

Sleeper arise! akin to sin
Is such a none can win
By sleeping recklessly.-

Chapter IV

13

In the mountain there is chatter-cranes are wanting to go out;
They discussed last night the matter and this morning they are gone.

Have you then forgotten quite and their talk you never heard When preparing, they last night
Had decided to depart.-
15
Oh my crane, your flock has gone-it departed yesterday-
A h, without loved-one, alone what will you in mountains do.

They in conveys travel ever, their connections never cut-
Not like man their kinship sever,
O h, behold the loving birds.

17
O man, at dawn what glitters bright take not for drops of dew.
But seeing sorrowing ones, the night
Burst into thousand tears.

18
Trouble will come to those, who do
In 'face' and 'from' delight-Fools laugh and laugh, forgetting quite the task that they came for.
D 19
degenerates enamored were
Of forth,...milk tasted not,
They lost 'D irection' through world's share and empty-handed went.

20
Today a bridegroom gay and strong-tomorrow lies in grave;
Building a fort of sand...how long will you be building still.
Ghatu-XXIV

(Shark-H unters)

1 Even the wise confounded got and heroes lost their wits
Those who went out to face the sea, were caught by current's plot;
Of “Ebb and tide”, they all forgot what they had learnt before.

2
A power weird is in Kalach, lost is who enters there;
No one brings news who does ensnares the nets and keeps them down.

3
To Kalachi but yesterday brave men went forth with spears;
Late were the brothers...none returned,
nought more of them one hears.
Whirlpools have swallowed them one fears the fishers all are dead.

Translated In Verse By Elsa Kazi

4

Where fishers used to seek the fish,
the barren sand-dunes lie;
Fish-sellers ruined, the river dry;
and tax collector gone

5

Had they been near, they would have come; perchance too far they got Fisher folk saw their haunts, called out to know about their lot...
A las, response received they not and sadly they returned.

6

The bazaar is without fish-smell, while market formerly With small carps, and with herrings too abundantly did swell.
Now there is not a shrimp to sell buyers have empty hands.
7

You throw the nets in creeks...not so the sharks are ever killed; Possess strong sweep nets that you throw in deepest sea below;
Sharks not to shallow waters go,
and depths are far ahead.

8

To enter sea, prepare your ropes; strengthen them bit by bit-
-Relationship do not befit Kalachi fishermen!

9

Shark hunter's 'moob', that is the way
a victory to reap-Their eagerness for whirlpools, and their longing for the deep, Deprives them every night of sleep-they yearn to kill the shark.
In search, they into whirlpools got and to fathomless ness...
They killed the shark; with happiness now beam fishermen's eyes.
Kapaitie-XXV

(Spinner)

Chapter-I

Although a spinner, not depend upon yourself entirely;
The knowing buyer faults at end may find within your thread.

As long as you can spin, spin on,
work-season soon declines;
All spinners are...but work of all is not in favour lines-
She ne'er breaks thread, nor for rest pines who has realized the truth.

3

This phase will end so soon, as long, you can spin, spinning keep-
For your Eid do prepare a work of art, and success reap.

That scorching tears you may not weep
'midst your girl friends tomorrow.
Toil on and feel not proud, or else your Lord offended be-
The wheel turn...round your neck hang scarf
Of sweet humility...
You little faulty one-then see your work is not in vain.

Chapter-II

When connoisseurs arrived, they found,
the flaws that did not please.
They called to spinner...in their way they asked: "How made you these?"
"Untidy I, have failed to tease the lumps from out the yarn."-

With rancour in their hearts, although with fine yarn spools they fill,
Not even an ounce the expert will
Of their product accept.
7

Wondrous devotion spinners have, who tremble, spin and spin;
For earning good, in spinning yard at sun-rise they begin-
Such soul-beauty the connoisseurs even for themselves would win
Yarn spun by spinners so genuine without weighing they buy.

Chapter-III

8

Who in themselves the cotton thrash their thread's without compeer;
The 'whirr' of spinning wheel, they would not let their life's breath hear,- Secretly, tremblingly they go on spinning so sincere-
Those that refuse the jewels here, priceless themselves they are.

Translated In Verse By Elsa Kazi
Now yesterday you did not spin-
Today you have no time to spend;
You silly one, how long the friend shall overlook your faults?

The spinners, spinning, spinning were-but now not one I spy-Spinning wheels in disorder lie, and sitting huts are closed.

I neither see same cotton-pods nor spinners are the same-So empty the bazaar become to see it, breaks my hearts!

Wool in my tunic, I proceed to spinning-yard...alas, No single spinner breathing was they'd gone to sleep for aye.
Rippa-XXVI

(Calamity)

Chapter I

1

O mother, sorrow's harrowing has swamped my whole being All honour to the sorrowing who walk on uphill way.

2

My love took joy and health from me;
sorrow my mate became;
Mother, my fate destruction be thus parted from my love.

3

Sorrows have neither hands nor feet, yet wildly run through me-Within they travel in dense rows nought can their rage defeat, Oh, who in loneliness complete would without loved-one live?
4
Dry ground gives rise to growth, in rain,
the same with me it is...
From separation growth of pain and sorrow issue forth.

Chapter-II

5
The mind awake doth never stay, although with scorn I keep it reined-With dust gets covered all the day just like a road-side tree.

6
When I lay waking on my bed,
Loved-one's favours stirred memory;
My pillow got all wet with tears hand too, on which did lie my head Memory kept on...with pain I said:
"Sisters, my life is all in vain.-" 7

Mine eyes don't sleep, their drowsiness now all but broken is;
When fires dull, memory's distress makes flames shoot up again.

8

Remembering your kindness, I live...
favours endless I count,
Numberless graces you did give Beloved, to poor me!

9

For outside clouds I need not care, rain ever pours within;
Beloved's clouds are everywhere on my horizons here.

10

Desiring to forget, I groan, and yet I can't forget-Longing hurts like a broken bone sharp and continuously.
Chapter-III

11
Weep secretly, and not disclose through tears your wretched state;
And all the sorrows bear, still those arrive who pains remove.

12
O hide your love, as potters do that cover up the kiln-Free fire cannot bake a pot,
the potters' ways pursue;
As potters do with kiln, so you must ne'er uncover fire.
Karayal-XXVII (The Swan)

Chapter-I

1

The root of Lotus flower fair in deepest waters grows-High soars the humble-bee, but fate their in most wishes knows.
Through love, fulfillment it bestows, and makes the lovers meet.

2

The swan that shunned the cormorants now spreads its wings, to fly To heavens high! so to descry fountains where his love dwells.

3

Now from the height, the deepest depth his eye doth pierce, to find The things to which he is inclined,
the tiny shining bits.

Translated In Verse By Elsa Kazi
www.itsgrouplrk.com
Chapter-II

Why not you enter depths and dive
For bits, rejoicing there
My swan, why for the banks you care;
no use have banks for thee.

5

These waters by the cormorants polluted, soiled they were-Swans are ashamed to enter there and never venture near.

7

O foolish swan! with cormorants
do not keep company;
But change the dirty waters, seek the clean ones speedily...
O r else you'll drink one day...may be with herons of the swamps.
8

Why do you hang about the banks or by the roadside hide?
To meadows broad of ‘Oneness’ go, plan no escape, abide,
And find the lake of love, to float in its refreshing tide-
Of secrets hum, of Reality-
With fellow swans reside;
With recognition true your heart cleanse, and be purified-Inspired by the guide, pick grains, and sing, by nought defied;
So that you never on this side bird-hunter may behold.

O swan! come to clear waters, where you are remembered still-
The hunters here are out to kill and they are after you!
the swans divine are those who pick the pearls from waters pure;
They never soil their beaks with mud;
some fishes to secure;
In crowds of cormorants, obscure
They are...world knows them not.

Chapter-III

The lakes are same, but different birds now in their waters lave...
Ah... those with graceful necks, who gave sweet songs, flew far away.

The lovely peacocks all are dead,
and not one swan I see...
Instead the crafty snipes...ah me have here their homeland made.
Chapter I

1
When 'Be' was not yet said, nor was there flesh-bone scheme or plan; when Adam had not yet received his form, was not yet man; then my relationship began, my recognition too.

2
"Am I not thy Lord?" came a voice; a voice so sweet and clear; and I said: "yes" with all my heart when I this voice did hear; and with a bond I did adhere that moment to my love.

3
Ere God created souls, by saying; "Be", all one they were; together were they-and behold my kinship started there I still this recognition bear with thee, Beloved mine.
Chapter-II

4

A prisoner I by destiny... or who would want, these forts
"We nearer than thy life's vein are"
to that home I will flee W hen will I be from mansions free and reach my M aru sweet?

5

I'll burn these houses...M ansions tall that shorn of loved-ones are "All things return to their origin"
that's my longing's call;
M ay I walk home, away from all and see my land 'malir'.

6

N o news, no dream vouchsafed to me
no messenger doth come;
From 'there to here', there's no reply,
no answer to my plea-Princes, I know not what must be accounts you did render.
7

O God, do send the messenger who will my message bear-I do belong to them, although to own me they don't care...
I hold the pen within my hand,
may some one paper spare;
Tears check my writing, in despair
O'er pen they fall and fall.

8

Scores of patches my bodice shows, my head with rags is decked-I to my people hoped to go and all robes did reject;
My shawl from Dhat, may God protect its virtue to hide my shame.

In the condition that I came, could I return in same-W hat glory, like a seasonal rain what joy would I reclaim.
10

A lmighty G od, let it not be that I in bondage die Enchained my body night and day, doth weep in misery-O let me first my homeland see and then my days let end.

11

O where is my distinction gone?
my beauty and my grace?
M y homeland I can never seek in this condition base;
If beauty granted be then face
I dare B eloved one.

O mar, my face so dirty is,
my beauty now is done;
A nd yet, I have to go where none without beauty's received.
Chapter-III

Fair Marui does not wash her hair,
She does not smile or eat,
On Omar's justice relies she who robbed her freedom sweet;-
"The havoc you have wrought, you'll meet at your arrival 'there'."

14
Fair Marui does not wash her hair, clothed it is, ugly
The nomad folks of desert land live in her memory-
"O mar, parted from them, unfree I'll ne'er in forts reside."

15 Fair Marui does not wash her hair,
for Malir longeth she...
Only when prince doth set her free balance restored will be...
Whole desert will drink milk, for glee when 'trust' is safe returned.
16
There is no force to make them pine,- no taxes in their land,
They gather lovely flowers red for mangers of their kine-Malir with lustrous smiles doth shine there priceless marus are.

17
Loved-one I never can forget;
my mind with him is filled-Nothing you see is like Him, so to sight he does not yield;
Because, loved-one His house has built in negativity.

18
Omar, for me your mansions grand a double torture are;
Here you torment me...there, so far loved-ones accuse me too.
19
To Maru needle joined my breath,
a needle, oh so fine,
My heart is there, my earthy flesh must here to force resign;
My breath is in the thatch divine my body's to mansions bound.

20 The needle's Beauty, ne'er shall I compare with kingliness;
The needle covers naked ones
but not 'itself' doth dress;
The twice-born only can possess knowledge of its loveliness.

Chapter IV

21

"Palatial doors and windows I will build for thee, Marui-

But here now...lovely canopies I shall raise over thee...

Those who did ne'er enquiries make why so continously

You weep for them? something must be wrong with the desert-folk."

22

"How to forget him, whom my memory holds for ever more?"

Since: "am I not thy Lord?" was uttered, or e'en long before;

Ere: Born He's not...gives birth to none from the inane did soar.-

Remembering Him-May-Marui so sore may die today or tomorrow.
23 Threads Maru round my wrists tied...gold fine gold they are for me;
O mar, don't offer silks to rustic maid, they leave me cold-Because much dearer I do hold my worn ancestral shawl.

24
Were I to breathe my last, looking to my home longingly-My body don't imprison here in bondage and unfree-
A stranger from her love away not bury separately;
The cool earth of the desert let the dead one's cover be;
When last breath comes, O carry me to Malir, I implore.
25
As oyster long for cloud, and cranes long for their native-hills.
So deepest longing my heart strains till nought of life remains.- How would I sit here, if not chains held me a prisoner?

26
The wounds that happy rustics left today fester again-Sumro, sorrow dwells in me of every joy bereft;
From Maru's separation, cleft is every bone of mine.

Chapter-V

27
My girl-friends in reproachful mood,
today sent word to me:
"Silly one, you perhaps have eaten much of princely food, Abd friends, and your relations good you have forgotten all.”
28
In corners of the fort, to quell her grief Marui doth mourn Remembering Malir, she doth weep, makes others weep as well
O may the maid reach home and dwell amongst her Marus soon.

29
"Would that I never had been born, or died at birth"...she says;
"O what a torture, shame and scorn to Marus I became."

30
Destiny brought me here...reside
I do unhappy here;
My body's here—my heart is there where Maru doth abide;
May God now turn this sorrow's tide and let me meet my love.
31
The lightening are now newly dressed,
the season doth return;
Mine eyes do not stop drizzling...for ancestral land they yearn-I would not with such sadness burn
if they would think of me.

32
If looking to my native land with longing I expire;
My body carry home, that I may rest in desert-stand;
My bones if Malir reach, at end, though dead, I'll live again.

Chapter-VI

33
A messenger arrived' this day authentic news conveys;
"Do not forget your distant love and do not die", he says,
You shall reach home; only few days
in this fort you may stay?
34

The one who from my homeland came, oh at his feet I fall
And to this traveler, my heart did open, telling all-A n instant more behind this wall to be, how I abhor.

35

"Don't cry, don't weep and fret;
    shed no tears of dismay;
W hatever days appear,
O  let them pass away,- F or after sorrow, joy
O  M arui, comes to stay-D esert maid know, your chains by destiny's own sway
A re moved, and now you may throw them into the fire.” 36
O mar, a traveler I did meet today, with news for me.-
And as he stood and message gave from the Beloved sweet
I felt all sufferings did retreat and my chains all did fall.

37
My iron shackles all are gone.-
Love's chains unyielding are.
Unhappy days without Marus in mansions, life did mar...
My countrymen, they are too far reproach them I cannot.-

38
Good were the days that I in pain in tortuous prison passed; Storms roared above threateningly,
my cries for help were vain;
But lo: my love by prison chain,
was chastened, purified.
39
The days I passed in deep despair, away from homeland mine,- My tribesmen will reproach me, if my face looks washed and fair-So to their thatches I'll repair to wash off mansion dirt!

40
“Don't weep, nor cry in agony
but when the world's asleep;
At night raise both your little hands to God, and hopeful be Where you wedded were, brave Marui ‘that homeland' thou shalt see,” Sohni-XXIX

Chapter-I

1

Currents have their velocity, rivers their speed possess-
But where there's love, a different rush its currents do express,
And those that love fathomless ness, are steeped in depth of thought.-

2

Master the lesson thoroughly that law doth teach Sohni-Then contemplate and meditate till 'truth' comes near to thee-But "Reality's Vision" will be reward of lovers true.

3

So many, many line the banks-
"Sahar! Sahar!" they cry-Afraid some to risk life, and some Renouncing would die.
But Sahar meets, who without sigh joyfully waters seek.
4
The rivulets are not yet deep;
the depth is far ahead,
O friends, relations are secure
When one at home doth keep But had you seen my Sahar's face you would no longer sleep-Nor stop me,-but take float and leap into the running stream.

5
If you his features were to see you could no longer rest;
Nor by your husband's side, would you so comfortable be But earthen-jar, long before me, you would pick up and plunge.

6
If you had seen with your own eyes, what I have seen and know-
For that you'd surely sacrifice your homes and husbands too.
7

A h! those who do their eyes and face
A djust to Sahar sweet,
Behold! if e'en without support
They plunge in whirlpool's maze-
They are immune from river's ways
For waters drown them not.

8

In wintry night and rain Sohni seeks flood with jar of clay-
"O h let us go and ask Sohni who knows of love's true way;
W hose thoughts with Sahar always stay throughout the night and day."

9

From Sahar, Sohni drank with zeal, life-giving draught of love-Intoxicated with its taste she still its charm doth feel-
By pointed arrow, sharp as steel of cupid, she was struck.- 10
From "D um", who chides, she has no fright her spouse he never was;
See,-even muddy, gurgling stream her beauty cannot blight!
For Sahar, she in darkest night will plunge in eddies wild.

Chapter-II

11
O sisters, tinkling cattle bells my every limb have stirred-The love, by bell-music aroused one not to strangers tells-
The friend, my main-stay, far he dwells yet sends his solace sweet.

12
All round the herdsman's bells I hear the tinkling sattle bells;
When sleeping, echoes of their chime from far did reach mine ear.
How could I sleep when travelling near this music rent my heart?
13 Stirred by the bells, how could I sleep
restfully and in peace?
When I a hundred times the day for Sahar long and weep!
In chains of love Sahar doth keep my being till I die.

14
On this side of the stream, the strain of echoes reaching me-
From loving Mehar's bells, old wounds began to bleed again;
To go to him and soothe my pain incumbent then became!

Chapter-III

15
Young buffaloes she seeks, her woes with them she doth confide;
"My Mehar of the Buffaloes oh have you met him yet?"
16
She puts her arms, by grief opprest around their necks and weeps.-
"Coarse grasses that you eat, I'll place against my aching breast,
And with your voice I shall be blest and ever happy be."

17
The sun is setting, and the crows in trees at rest now are;
The call for prayers Sohni hears and she picks up the jar,
To float across the river far,
and see where Sahar is.

18
She need not ask for slopes, she finds a slope at any place;
An easy slope and easy ways are for the fickle minds-But those whom love to Sahar blinds need neither slopes nor ease.- 19
The false ones seek for sloping banks,
and only seek for show;
But those who Sahar truly love where they must enter, know For those who with love's thirst do glow whole river is one-step.

Chapter-IV

20 Blest be dark night, the moolit night be now so far away,
So that except Mehar's, I may not see another face.-

21
Go without 'Self', seek no support, and forget everything, Sohni, thy love alone thee to the other side will bring;
"Longing",thy guide, the thundering river shalt eas'ly cross.
A call sounds from the other side,
clearly: "Come!" it doth say.
The river overflows with waves, skies overcast and grey-
I know that with whom God doth stay shall never, never drown.

A call sounds from the other side,
clearly "Come!" it doth say-River in spate, and weak one with an unbaked jar of clay-
I know, nought yields to water's sway that upheld is by 'Truth'.

A black full night, and from above sky, rain in torrents sends-
On one side fear of trackless ness
On other, lion stands-
"If even life in effort ends
I shall keep tryst of love."
26
She's neither here nor there, alone in midst of roaring stream-On dry banks only Sahar stands all else is flooded zone-Oh seek the waves! mercy is shown only to drowning ones

27
She took the jar...she plunged so deep may God the maiden save Her leg in mouth of dog-fish and her neck the shark will have-Her bangles, garments in the mud-her hair floats on the wave-
The fishes big and small, all round are crowding, food they crave;
And crocodiles prepare a grave-poor Sohni will be sliced.
28
A drowning man, by feeble grasses at the banks will hold,
Look at the wondrous chivalry
the tender straws unfold,
To hold him up, they will make hold,
or else with him will sink.

29
I knew not that the jar was faked its colours were the same-My heart beyond control, I thurst myself on jar unbaked;
The thing on which my life I staked in midstream landed me.

30
By help of which the longing eyes did see Beloved's face;
The jar, how could I sacrifice as dear as life to me?
31

My heart exhausted is and weak, no strength my limbs have now;
"O Sahar, thou dost know all this,
O help me, cast thy tow-
I am so ignorant, and thou my love so great thou art."

32

The jar, the means to reach, did break,
alas, the maiden drowned,
But only then she heard the sound of Sahar's voice draw nigh.

33

The means on which she had relied,
did thrust her in the flood;
And only after she had died she heard the herdsman's call.-
Chapter-V

34

"The jar is broken! let it go obstructive screen it was mere-My real being is singing still soul-music still is here
And still I seek my Sahar dear, though without 'action' now."

35

My heart, you keep on swimming,
the jar let break and go...
My eyes, I train them every day
more of control to know;
The herdsman led me, and did show to me friend, the 'straight' path.

36

Suggest no rafts to those who love
nor ask boat-men around; Sohni that is for Sahar bound enquiring doth not need.
37
Hundreds were by the river drowned-but river drowned was by this maid;
The current broke itself instead,
by knocking bluntly 'gainst the banks.

38
As long she was alive,-she ne'er sat down, did never rest
Now she lies underground,...her quest in silence still goes on.

39
If loved-ones met on judgment day that would be very near,
But ah! so very far away, tiding of 'Union' are.

40
Sahar, Sohni and sea inseparably 'One'-
This ineffable mystery
no one can ever solve.
Chapter-VI

41

"On what count am I here? O why bereft of loved ones face?
"You preach: "Deflect from sin", but I your virtue do deny-
"M oral control I do not need nor do for music sigh.-
"Keep closed your lips, and from within yourself you'll beautify-
"These that on 'Top' of waters flow are bubbles that belie.-
"Feed on selflessness, for your love M incemeat to be, then try-
"If headlong into dirt you rush yourself you'll purify-
"N ought does possess more wealth than dust nothing with dust can vie,- "W ho runs by stirrup of the guide the other side will spy.-
"Falcon, pick up your greedy self and fly with it on high.

"Don't lose sigh of the friends, walking in veils that mystify.

"More than Oneness in love, is like splitting two-lettered tie

"Those who do long for wine of love with purest them supply."

"These ravings are the vain reply of tortured, sickly one.

On what count, am, I here oh! why?

Bereft of loved ones face."

This afternoon the three friends once again had met in the poet's garden, whose orchard had yielded a great apple harvest that had been shared by the parson and philosopher. Here on lawn were two apple trees that still were laden with fruit. Beneath one of them the philosopher reclined on a garden-chair reading a book. By his side sat the Bella Donna, purring loudly in anticipation of her Saucer of milk. One of the branches of the tree beneath which the philosopher rested, was bent with its burden of apples. The vicar craned his neck and remarked: "They are over-ripe and should come down" and looking at the poet, he added: "You think you could climb up and shake that branch?" The poet was ready to do so. He climbed the tree and took a seat up there between two branches, which was quite a comfortable place. He then shook the branch to which the parson pointed, but since it was very thick, it did not move readily and no apple dropped. "Slide a little forward to where the branch is thinner," advised the vicar. The poet surveyed the situation. The branch had no able support and he hesitated.
to take the step. Then the parson encouraged: Come along; where there's a will, there's a way." The poet carefully slid forward. Suddenly he lost his balance and was hurled down, right upon the knees of the philosopher, who uttered a horrified yell, having been absorbed in his book without taking notice of what was going on around him. The chair crashed beneath the weight, and both men rolled on to the lawn, while the shocked cat rapidly climbed up the tree whence the poet had dropped. The vicar rushed to the assistance of his friends, muttering: "So sorry... so sorry..." The philosopher managed to sit up, nursing his knee with a grim face, not yet quite realizing whence the avalanche had come, and the poet, half raised by the parson, bellowed: "Where there's a will... there's a way indeed," which sounded like a curse.
Fortunately none of the two men were hurt seriously as the collision of soft limbs had reduced the force of the blow, and the giving way of the chair had lessened resistance. Another chair was procured. The two men got slowly used to walking again and by the time tea arrived, things looked brighter. The warm beverage soothed and consoled, and after a cigarette, the poet was ready to ask the philosopher about his nation on Free Will. His friend did not respond all at once but watched thoughtfully the cat that had come down from the tree and was lapping her milk. The poet had to repeat his question and then the philosopher said emphatically:

"There is no such thing as free will. Choice and will are always motivated by something in which we see our own good, though such a motive sometimes may lie even beyond space and time. He that acts instinctively as animals do, and he that acts rationally in the line of greatest resistance, both are motivated by something that acts upon their choice and will. A woman as well as an animal will rush to save their children's lives at the cost of their own. This is an instinctive act arising from the impulse of life-preservation, or compassion. The will here is fettered to emotionalism. And action is motivated by that."

A perfectly rational man who wishes to follow Christ's saying: "Lose life to gain life," may lay down his life for another man to serve humanity. He acts in the line of greatest resistance since every particle within him clinging to life. He thus is besieged by everything within him not to give away the treasure of his own life for another man who neither may be his relative, not his friend, or any one he struggles with the aid of reason, his friend, that the highest moral good lies there. Was his will fettered to any selfish motive that could have urged him to act in this way?" Both, the vicar and the poet, answered in the negative. The philosopher smiled wistfully and said: Does it not strike you that by saving another man's life in this way our hero has acted according to a mere principle, namely, that human life must be saved at all cost? He has acted according to this, without examining what human life stands for and how far it is entitled to deserve such a sacrifice at all. Supposing the man whom he saved was not only useless, but immensely destructive to that very humanity. Not only that, had the man been a useful one, even then by giving his life for him, our hero has destroyed one human life, namely his own. May be, he was activated by the ambition to gain immortal life for his soul, which made him choose to compel his will to defy everything that stood in the way of this ambition. To gain "immortal life" that was the motive; and can you say his will was free?"

For a time great silence reigned, and then the parson said: "You mean that God himself is the motive which makes us act in the line of the greatest resistance, and according to the highest moral principles, our will is not free, but is fettered?"

"So it is," said the philosopher. "It is always fettered. There is not only free will, but nothing in this phenomenal universe is "free". Everyone of our acts, instinctive or highly rational, is bound by the chain of predestination. The Lord's prayer says: "They will be done." Not a fly can move without that it is predestined, i.e. willed by God. No free actions on our part are possible."

The poet then wished to know about pre-destination; but the philosopher shook his head and said: "One thing at a time, you will hear about causation and pre-destination when we meet again."
The Philosopher (Mechanical Life)

By: Elsa Kazi

The philosopher had delivered a lecture in town. On his way home he met the vicar and both went to pay a visit to their friend the poet, who was alone in his garden, looking gloomy and worried.

"Here's trouble brewing," said the philosopher. "Trouble indeed," admitted the poet; offering chairs and his cigarette-case to his visitors: "My house-keeper has given notice. She wants more pay and has kicked up a row... what an ugly show it was: and yet our dear philosopher says there is beauty in everything that lives... She was indeed 'alive', but beauty was absent... She is a 'Living' devil." The philosopher laughed and said: "You will remember that I said circumstances often prevent us from seeing beauty in an object. Everything that 'really' lives is beautiful. By that I did not mean that everything that moves is possessed by the essence of true life. There are indeed souls from which the essence of life has departed. The life of such a man is nothing but a mechanical activity. A mere momentum of the original. You will find that such a man has no aesthetic appreciation either. His whole desire is to increase his wealth and worldly power which, he believes, can replace the potentiality that he has lost.” The poet's face had brightened and the parson said: “You are right. I have seen such people. They have departed from the path of righteousness. Their whole life is a mere mimicry a mere reflection of the Real.”

But the philosopher did not quite agree and he said: "It may be a mimicry but it could never be 'reflection'. We must not give "reflection" such a bad name as all that, because Reflection of the Real is Art. The artist reflects the Beauty that he finds in the original first-hand creations of nature, and his reflections take the shape of what we call "Fine Art" such as poetry, painting or music. Such a reflection, if it is a product of spontaneity, is indeed a joy for ever and its loveliness is ever on the increase. But mechanical art which springs from mechanical life is akin to the momentum of a car, the power of which stops altogether, which has been switched off. It runs slower and slower until its motion stops altogether, which means that the productions of mechanical life become more and more uninteresting with the passage of time until they reach the motionless stage of mere nonentities. Judging from the tastes of modern men and women, we almost conclude that they do belong to the mechanical type. The output of painting, music and poetry in these modern days proves sufficiently of what stuff the artists are made. Even the taste of the best of them picks out mere external polish, a complexion, a color, a form, and cares little for expression of character and the glow of true life. Colorful shallowness is wanted in a woman; a mere doll is favored; but the depth and warmth of the living soul is passed by everything that is mechanical wins the prize.

The parson agreed whole heartedly with the speaker and said: "The world believes no longer in God. Faithlessness is at the bottom of all the trouble." But the poet said: "It may be that, the appearance of these mechanical crowds is caused by something else. May be, nature can no longer manufacture first class articles because her accumulator is being drained of atomic energy by our great scientists." At these words the philosopher chuckled merrily and declared: "The cause is neither faithlessness nor is nature's accumulator running out of energy. In the first place, nature is not in need of accumulators. Then, as I said in my last talk, the reality of the essence of life dwells beyond space and time. Nature draws upon that source which can never fail. The truth is: Nature's Intelligence is once again accomplishing a metamorphosis. She is performing an Involution and this alone is the cause of the appearance of this mechanical life on earth. Poor human beings have no hand in the matter at all. Nature alone is to blame that men in these days seem dead as mutton, and have become mere automatons. Yet, we cannot even blame nature either; because what she does, she has to do; otherwise the whole earth itself might experience an involution."
The parson sat up and said, "I cannot understand your mystic speech. Do you then not believe that the wickedness of man has produced this mechanical condition?" "By no means", replied the philosopher: "On the contrary, the mechanical condition has produced wickedness." The parson as well as the poet were struck with amazement. After some time the poet said: "By what law is nature acting?" And the philosopher replied with raised voice: "By the Divine law..." The parson was shocked and said with trembling voice: "Is this not a blasphemous statement?” “Not at all,” returned the philosopher. “The conception of man is a child at present. When it has grown to maturity it will be able to grasp all these things.” "Which things?" asked the poet nervously yet impatiently, and the other replied: "It will be able to grasp the Impossible. The poet was irritated and uttered a short laugh, saying: "And is it not the duty of those who possess the light to hand it on to those who dwell in gloom?" The philosopher became serious and said: “It is indeed, and I promise to do so at our next meeting.”

Soon after this, he took leave and went away. His last words had somewhat soothed the poet, but the parson was inconsolable and he kept on muttering. “He is an atheist... most assuredly he is an atheist.” “May be, he likes to puzzle people; but he shall not escape. Next time we meet him we will make him talk.”
The Philosopher (Passion, Compassion, Sacrifice)

By: Elsa Kazi

The garden of the poet was indeed a beautiful sight. It was the month of July and the roses were at their best. Large white lilies and clusters of blue delphinium had opened, and the apple trees were laden with hundreds of small green apples, as big as walnuts. The philosopher looked at them and said to the poet:

"Two months more and the apples will be ripe presenting you with a bumper crop." The parson nodded: "That will be good," he said: "There will be more at the harvest-feast from this side and the orphanages will benefit by it." The poet smiled: "I hope so," he said: "As far as I am concerned, all my apples are at the disposal of the poor and suffering folks."

"Suffering... suffering," murmured the philosopher, his mind still occupied with the subject they had discussed at tea. He lowered himself on to the smooth green lawn in the shade of an apple-tree and his two friends followed his example. Looking around, the philosopher sighed and said: "To think that all the trees and all their leaves and blossoms have to bear their cross of suffering. To think that no daisy and no blade of grass can come into existence without suffering, and no sunray can travel to earth without suffering." The poet looked up: "How do you mean that?" he asked: "I think it is mere joy that makes the sunrays visit the earth; they seem to dance and sing and laugh all the time." "That is your poetical conception," said the philosopher: "It is not only joy, but alternate joy and sorrow that brings them here. The sunrays suffer while they travel and without this suffering they could never be raised to experience the perfection of joy." The parson commented with slight irony on the mysterious meaning of the philosopher's words, asking for an explanation." All joy that we experience is owing to suffering" said the philosopher, and this remark was sufficient for the parson: "Indeed!" he cried: "The joy of eternal life in heaven is due to the suffering that a man had to bear on earth. This is the great lesson Christ taught us, and by taking the cross and shedding his blood with immense suffering he purged the human soul from sin and sorrow." But the philosopher said: "It is not quite so, my dear friend. Another word Compassion. We all know that
'com' means 'with' or 'together with'. So compassion means to suffer together with someone else (compassion). When we see a suffering creature, by chance we begin to suffer to. We suffer with the creature and this we call 'compassion'. When humanity realized the suffering of Christ, it was smitten with compassion often of no lesser force than the suffering of Christ himself. So that if Christ was raised through suffering to greater perfection, the soul of humanity was raised through suffering with him, to a higher ideal. To raise the soul of humanity to greater significance then, was purpose of Christ's suffering.

The parson, as well as the poet, both were pleased at the philosopher's explanation, who continued: "It was really compassion with the world, that had sunk in sin, which made Christ suffer, as he could have escaped suffering had he wanted to do so. But he did not defend himself. He chose the cross and forgot the 'Self' and its greed for every worldly advantage completely. He spurned the particular to merge in the universal in his great compassion for the sinful world. His suffering in turn awakened compassion in humanity which there by was raised and purified. Thus we see that compassion is the originator of "sacrifice" and that through sacrifice we rise and increase the significance of the soul. No higher values can be won without suffering; no life immortal either, for this is highest value that the soul strives to attain. All joy is manifestation of having attained a higher state of perfection, and all sorrow and suffering is the means of attaining such. Thus we see that suffering is the MEANS, and joy the END. Therefore, a man who strives to grasp the End without having made use of the means to this end, is like a man who attempts to leap from the ground up to the top of a high tower without using, the steps that lead to it. He will have, naturally, a bad fall. We should therefore not complain when something goes wrong and afflicts us, but should rather bear it patiently, remembering that sufferings are the steps that lead to the pinnacle of joy... the means to a pleasing end; a climbing which often may be difficult. The Quran puts it into the following words “Verily with difficulty is Ease”.

The Philosopher (Resurrection)

By: Elsa Kazi

After a long walk in the gardens the poet contemplated the glorious sunset. Close by a nightingale poured its love rhapsody, and a butterfly, as though entranced by it and drunk with perfume of the roses, winged its way through leaf and blossom that burned with the gold of sunset. "What a pity that all this beauty must pass away," murmured the poet sorrowfully; and to hold this loveliness he took out his note-book and jotted down a poem: "This will live when I am dead." he said to himself. On the way home his mind was troubled. He wondered what could happen after death; whether he would have a resurrection. His friend, the philosopher, who often had solved his problem had not come to see him for weeks, may be he had offended him by disagreeing with his notion on Eternity.

Arrived at home, he took the Bible from a shelf and searched for clue in the new Testament. Everywhere he read about the "Kingdom of Heaven". Resurrection was promised, but how it was to be accomplished was not explained. He closed the Bible and searching for other religious books, he came across an old Koran. Opening it, his eyes fell on the following passage: "Man bandies words with us and forgets his own creation. He says: who will give life to them who created you from dust the first time."

Reading this, the poet's face somewhat brightened. He paced the room excitedly and cried out: "Oh if I could believe in this: If I could believe that God made Adam from dust.... but then... what about the theory of Evolution?"

At this moment, his friend, the philosopher, entered. He had heard the poet's last words and he said: "What is that about the theory of Evolution? You seem quite upset, talking to yourself!" Seeing him, the poet welcomed him warmly. He pulled him to a chair and placed upon his knee the open Koran, pointing at the passage he had discovered: "Is this true?" he asked. The philosopher read the verses, and then he said: "Of course it is true! Do you mean to say that a painter can paint a new picture everyday, and a poet can create a poem everyday with same or other meaning, and that God can 'create' only once? You create a poem with the same old material, i.e. you take the same thoughts and ideas stored in your mind and push them from the entirely abstract and invisible domain into the visible concrete world in shape of a poem in black and white on tangible paper, hard and fast matter! Every thought takes the form of a word and every word that is written on the paper becomes a symbol of the thought and its meaning and by arranging these words in a certain way, the whole poem's meaning becomes either this or that.
Thus through the quantitative you arrive at the quantitative, and that all from the mere shadows of so called faded words that exist in the tomb of your mind and that we can see no longer and which resemble faded petals of a flower, or bones that have not only crumbled into dust but have vanished altogether from our sight, and yet you create from such invisibilities a visible glorious poem, and do you mean to tell me that God's creatures can do more than God himself? No my dear friend, you must look deeper into the matter, and make sure that as the meaning of faded words lie in the tomb of your mind, so the meaning of every bleached bone of a dead man is with God. Yes, the meaning of the dust and the very atoms that had constructed the bones are with God, and as you are able to reproduce your poem and its meaning when it is lost or perished in fire. God can reproduced you when you have perished, yes, reproduced you with all your meaning in detail and as a “Whole”, or even with lots of external different meaning which generally happens, in which case at your resurrection you might have blue instead of brown eyes, and yellow instead of black hair, and moves in different environment according to which you might be labeled Mr. Green instead of Mr. Brown, and for this reason your own people if still alive, would not recognize you."

The poet had listened with great interest and now he exclaimed with delight: "You have solved the problem of resurrection at least for me, and I know not how to thank you!" But after a while his face grew sad again and he said: "Supposing my dust is carried by the wind away; some of it to the north, some to the south, and some drowned in the sea... what then?" The philosopher smiled and replied. "I repeat that as long as the meaning of your dust and its atoms is with God you will experience a Resurrection, and only when your dust have vanished completely into,
'Invisibility' you will be raised, for then your meaning in all its details has been reassembled. Yes, then you will be reborn, and those who loved you truly will recognize you by 'Expression'. But now we are coming to the 'Law of Expression' of which I do not mean to speak today." The poet then hinted at the "Theory of Evolution" and the philosopher said: "Evolution is the process by which meaning expresses itself in forms." He then excused himself as he had to attend a philosophical meeting saying that it was one of those meetings at which ten percent of the matter is elucidated and ninety percent left in utter gloom and muddle.
The Philosopher (Purgatory)

By: Elsa Kazi

The poet had invited the philosopher to tea. He had also written a note to the parson asking him to grace the occasion, saying, their mutual friend the philosopher would be present as well. The parson had declined the honor. He did not wish to meet the philosopher because his ideas were, what he termed, too atheistic. But when the poet came in parson to persuade him, he remembered Christ's "Love thine Enemy" and accepted the invitations.

So the three friends met most cordially. The poet undertook the tea-pouring, and while he did so, "Bella Donna." the fluffy Persian cat, advanced begging for a saucer of milk, gazing at the poet with large, round, rather beautiful green eyes.

"Look at these eyes," said the philosopher: "The cat must have been indeed a Bella Donna," that is, a 'beautiful lady', in her life," The parson smiled: "This is of course a jest my friend," he said: "We know well that no creature having reached the human stage could ever be reduced to an animal after death, much less could appear as an animal on Judgment day. We have therefore the purgatory that purifies the soul from sin before the arrival of doomsday." The poet said nothing. He thought it was better to remain silent on this matter; but the philosopher, cutting a bit off his cake for the cat, said with emphasis: "I am sorry we differ here. Jest aside, I do believe that we can be reborn as animals." With these words he looked at the poet, and then continued: "Do you remember our talk on the 'meaning' of things?"

The poet cleared his throat and answered somewhat nervously: "I do remember; but I suppose our good friend looks at this problem from an entirely different angle". The parson straightened himself and remarked: "There can be only one point of view for us Christians. We believe we live only once on earth. When we die 'God given His beloved sleep' that is, we sleep in grave until we be awakened on dooms-day when we will be judged and then proceed either to Hell or to Heaven... There is, of course, a Purgatory where the soul is being purged of sin," The philosopher agreed: "That is so," he said: "Dante, having adopted the Muslim idea, speaks in his 'Divine comedy' of a purgatory, as there is no mention of it in the shape of anything, and it should in any case be accompanied by suffering". The parson nodded: "I agree", he said: "The cross is the symbol of suffering, and every one must carry his or her cross." The philosopher smiled and went on: "If we be reduced to an animal we have entered a purgatory and the cross we have to carry there, is very heavy." The parson frowned and said: "Animals are a species by themselves, and man's soul can never enter there." Upon this the philosopher asked: "Do you believe in the significance of the soul?"... "I do" said the parson: and the poet said: "I think all people do; and as soon as this significance is lowered..." he broke off, and the philosopher finished his sentence: "Indeed, you are right," he said: "By living a a life of depravity, by fighting on the 'bone' like a dog all his life, the significance of a man's soul will degenerate to that of a dog, and will therefore only be able to express itself in form of a dog at its rebirth. Having striven for that which is imperfect, the lowered significance of his soul must express itself in an imperfect form, may be such as a man more imperfect than others, having defective hearing and seeing, being lame or disfigured, or a savage with less power of perception, or even an animal. It all depends to what degree of imperfection, or soul had been lowered; and although an animal is said to be perfect in itself, in relation to man it is absolutely imperfect, for it has no power to convert its embryonic thoughts into speech, has no hands to clean itself or do anything for itself and others, nor can it cry for help when tortured, or explain afterwards what happened. Its condition is suffering, and suffering is the purgatory by which the value of the soul is being raised.

The parson disagreed with the philosopher's views and he said: "An animal is a non-moral being; it is not conscious of 'right and wrong' and to punish it and make it suffer for something it does not know, will be useless, as it will not learn a lesson by it." Upon this the philosopher replied: "Punishment as such does not exist. Suffering is not meant to be a punishment. It is merely an agent to raise the significance of the soul. It is force that brings the imperfect soul back to its former perfect state or even beyond it, and the pain it causes, we call punishment. The force of suffering works automatically according to its own law. It comes to all people either during their life-time, or after rebirth. We see sometimes very good people suffer greatly.
Suffering visits them to raise their souls still higher; or else... why was Christ made to suffer? He who was most saintly? It was to raise the 'perfect' even to greater perfection."

The parson shook his head protestingly and said: "I cannot bring myself to believe that this was the purpose of Christ's suffering. The Christians believe that he washed the sins of humanity away with his blood, and that this was the purpose of his suffering." "I wonder how this was done," mused the philosopher. Then he proposed a stroll in the adorable garden of their host, the poet.
